Features that you can do while calling on iPhone

1. Start a second call

This feature is on the call interface itself, but often iPhone users don't use much in their conversation. This is a feature that allows you to connect a second call as soon as you call to the first person with a few simple steps.

Talking about this feature, it is very practical, for example, you can keep the call of the first person and ask for information of another person without wanting to hang up with the first person.

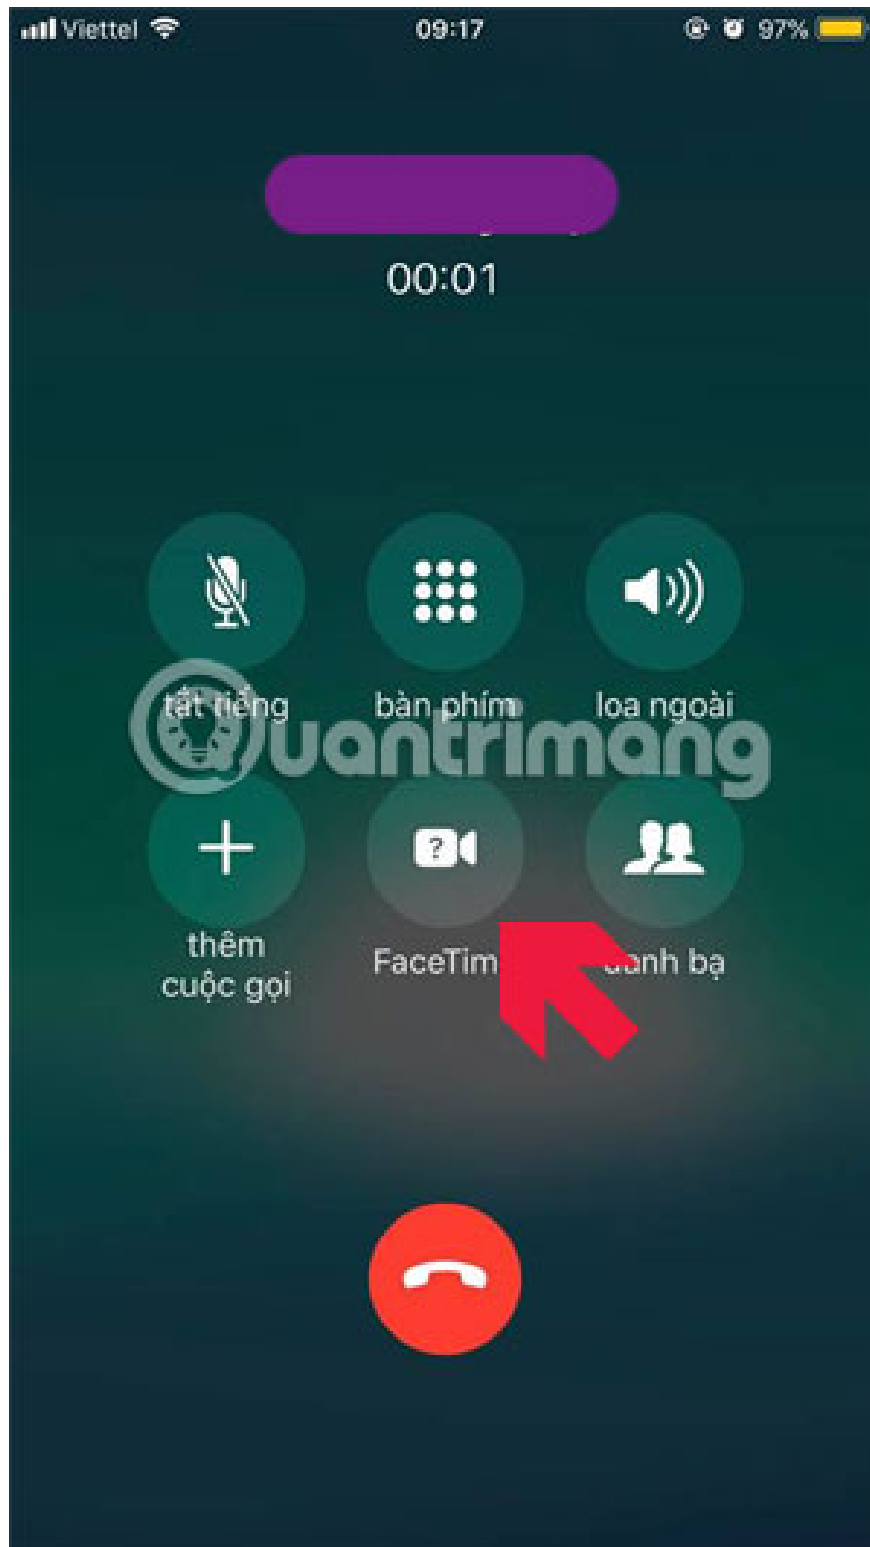

To make a second call while talking, click Add call from your call menu. You can then select one of your contacts in Contacts , or click the Keyboard section below to add a new phone number and make a call.

2. Switch to FaceTime

If the person you are calling is also using iPhone, you can convert your call into a FaceTime call, which will allow you to see the caller on the screen and you can use additional features such as add Add Memoji, Live Photos and incoming call alerts .

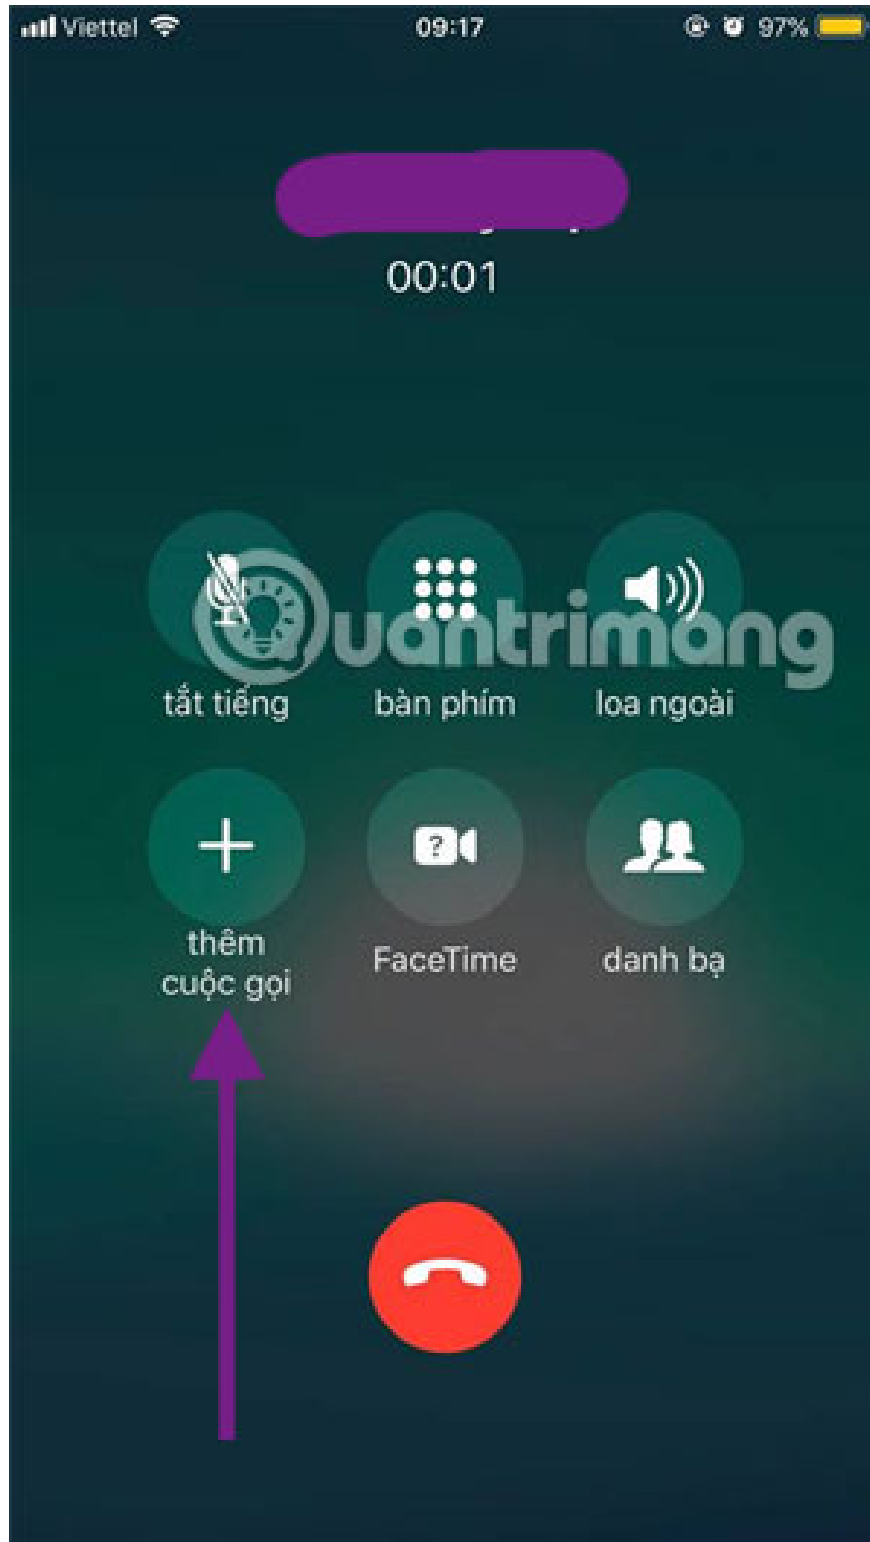

To transfer the call to FaceTime, you just need to click the FaceTime icon in the call menu.

3. Call many people at once on iPhone

This feature probably very few people pay attention to, this iPhone tips will help you send a call up to 5 people. Once you have made a call, it will be a discussion or a group meeting because when you speak, anyone on the list will hear your words. To achieve this feature, please follow the instructions below.

Step 1: Start your call and click Add call , in your contacts, select the people who want to connect to the conference call. Or select the Keyboard below and enter the phone number.

Step 2: Click on the phone number of your friends in the contact interface, in the phone call interface, click on the phone number to make a call.

Step 3: When you are making a call with the first person, you will see that call goes into Hold status when calling for the second person. When the second person has caught the phone click on Merge the call , then all Everyone in the group call will hear each other's voices.

4. Turn on the speakerphone

This is probably the feature most users use most in many different situations, for example, your hands are busy doing something that you want to listen to, then use external speakers. You will hear all the words that the other person says, then answer the microphone below.

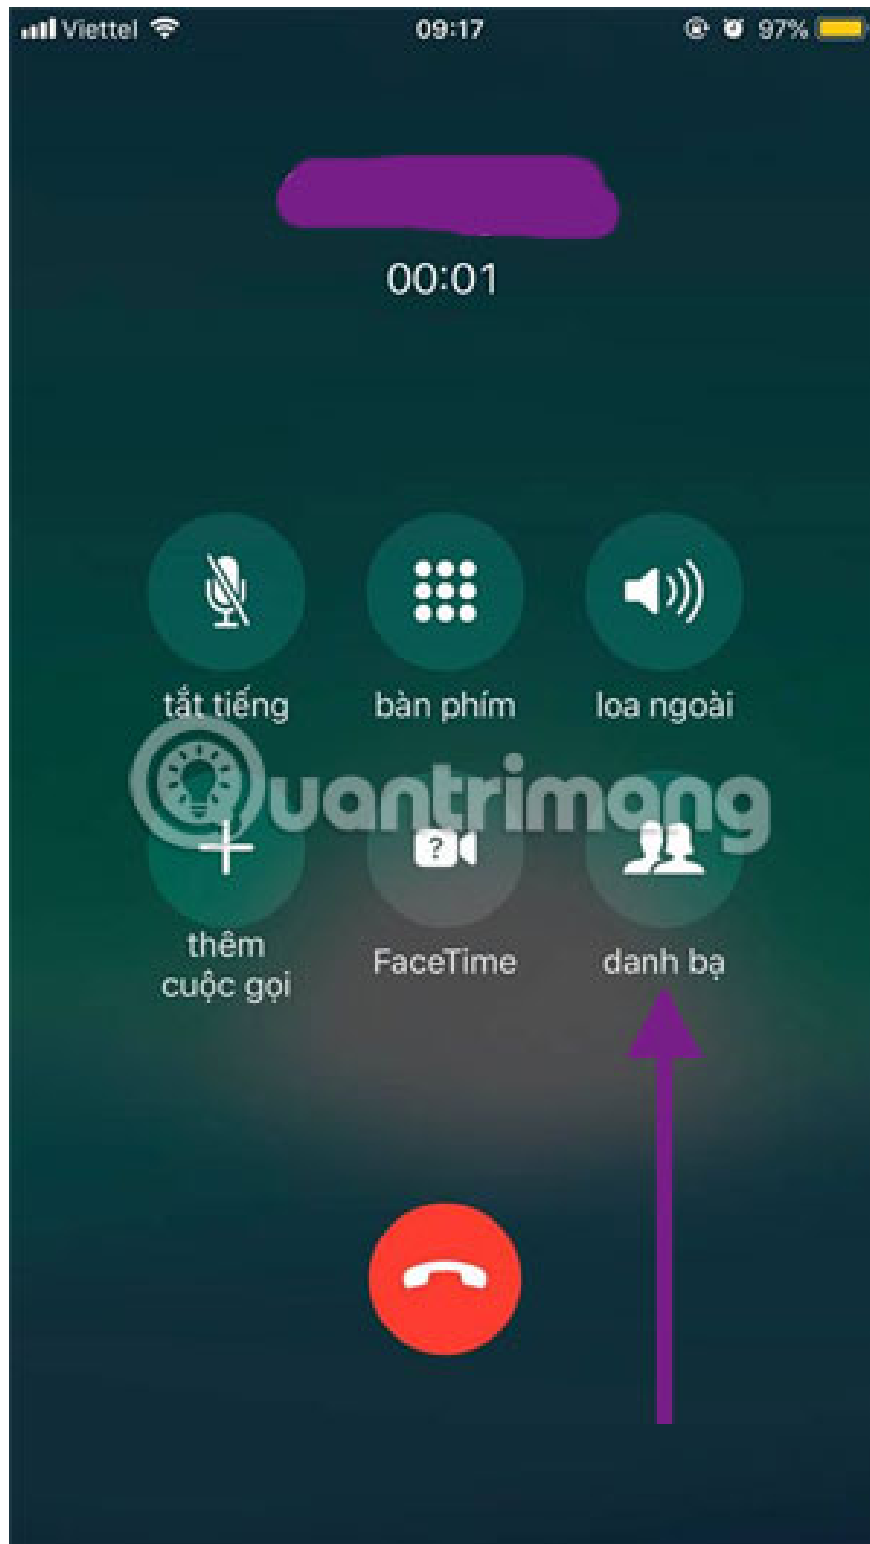

To use the Speakerphone feature on your iPhone, click Speakerphone in the call menu.

5. Browse the contacts

There will be times when a person calls you just to ask someone else's phone number, and the next thing you can do is text that person your phone number. That is fine, but you can also tell the phone number for that person by clicking the Contacts section in the call menu interface.

Unlike the contacts list above, in this interface you only have your contacts, you can click the contact in the contact to open the phone number, then tell the person you are calling. know.

6. Answer the call by SMS

The phone does not always ring at the right time, there are times when you are busy with a meeting, or you are busy with a customer, interviewing the candidate without clicking the red button or clicking Power button to wait for the other party to wait, you can choose the answer option with the available message.

This is an available feature that will appear on the call interface every time a caller comes in, there are three default options that are Sorry, currently I can't answer , I'm on the way and I can call back later is not?. Depending on the situation, please choose the answer accordingly.

In addition, you can also create other answers by clicking Options . at the bottom, you can also overwrite the available sms reply options by going to Settings> Phone> Feedback Retrieved by message .

7. Mute when calling

Mute when calling? It seems that this is a somewhat confusing option when you are making a call, but this is an essential feature and quite useful when you are making a call that someone standing beside you asks you something, you don't want the caller on the other side to hear your words to the person standing next to you, use this feature.

Many people often use the method of hiding the microphone below or leaving the phone away so that the person on the other end of the line can't hear the words, but it doesn't help when your words are still in the top wire of the other party. You just need to click the Mute icon on the call interface.

8. Set a call reminder

There is an incoming call, but you do not want to listen at this time for many different reasons, you can choose to reply with the above sms message and will call that person again a short time later.

But are you sure that you remembered and called that person again, so when you remember that the call was recorded in the Call Log, it went away or was late. Now you have to fix that situation right away by using the Call Reminder feature on your phone.

There are two reminders that are default on your phone, a message that will prompt you when you leave your current location. Secondly, if you are stuck in a meeting, an interview, or are busy with something short of listening to the phone, choose a reminder over time.

Just select the Remind me feature in the caller interface, then click the option you want to remind the call again. To prompt based on your location, make sure that Location Services is turned on by going to Settings> Privacy> Location Services and turning this feature on.

9. Play the game

You are playing a game, be it PUBG Mobile or Mobile Coalition, or any game where the game is coming to a climax and you receive an incoming call. If you start the phone, leave the Speaker, just gank the team and answer your call

Or if you're playing, remember to call your loved one to ask for something that you don't want to go out. Pause and exit the main screen, make a call and turn on the external speaker. Next, open the multitasking menu and select the game again. Note that it is recommended to open fewer applications at this time because if your computer has low RAM, then the game may be reloaded from the beginning.

10. Watch videos or Podcasts

Just like playing games like the one above, your iPhone can play sounds from calls and even video streaming applications like YouTube at the same time.

This means that you can watch videos, listen to music or play podcasts while still talking on the phone, press Home with iPhone 8 or below and swipe from the bottom of the screen up to the iPhone line to exit the conversation and open other applications.

Sure, you can use these features for a few times, or maybe you won't use any features because there aren't many needs. But with such a varied call option, you can apply it in the right case and will find that these features are very useful.
