

10 methods of teaching children of Jews, every parent should learn

Any parent who wishes to raise a child is successful and many people spend countless hours on finding a recipe to achieve that dream. Unfortunately, without any books, any pattern can ensure that mothers teach their children to be successful.

1. In order for children to succeed, parents should implement these 10 things
2. Even though the afternoon, the child was born easily but Vietnamese parents still did
3. 12 simple tips to be a good father

As we all know, Jews are considered to be the smartest people in the world, in this country with just over 13 million people but there are 40% of Nobel laureates. The key to their success is parenting.

The way of education of Jewish parents is not like many people, they let their children develop naturally, thinking according to their own thoughts without being constrained, forced from anyone. Here are 10 methods used by most Jewish parents to raise successful kids! Let's refer to offline!

1. Encourage children to be independent

Self-taught children from an early age, is the way most Jews do to help their children grow up. Coming to any cafe in Israel, it is not difficult to meet Jewish children who sit on their own to eat steaks even though they are only about 1 year old. They create conditions for children to do anything when their condition allows. In Vietnam, when children are young, most parents do not want their children to establish themselves too early, something that can be easily seen in Vietnam that is a child even 4, 5 years old but still be given by parents eat rice every day. It is these things that have formed for children to rely on their parents, surrounded by their parents, the future can hardly be successful.

2. Encourage your child to try

In order to become independent individuals, parents should recognize and praise their efforts. When children have a new hobby, even at any age, parents should encourage children to try.

In our development steps, parents are always my companion to be able to promptly comfort and share the problems that children face in life. Always encourage your children 'It was a bit difficult at first,' which can help children feel more confident.

3. Trust your child

For Vietnamese parents, when they reach a high score or win a competition, they often give their children a candy or a favorite toy. But on the contrary, for Jewish parents, the reward they give to them is absolute trust, which sounds strange, but this is the most valuable reward for you, this shows that your child is older, has grown up already.

4. Appearance doesn't say anything

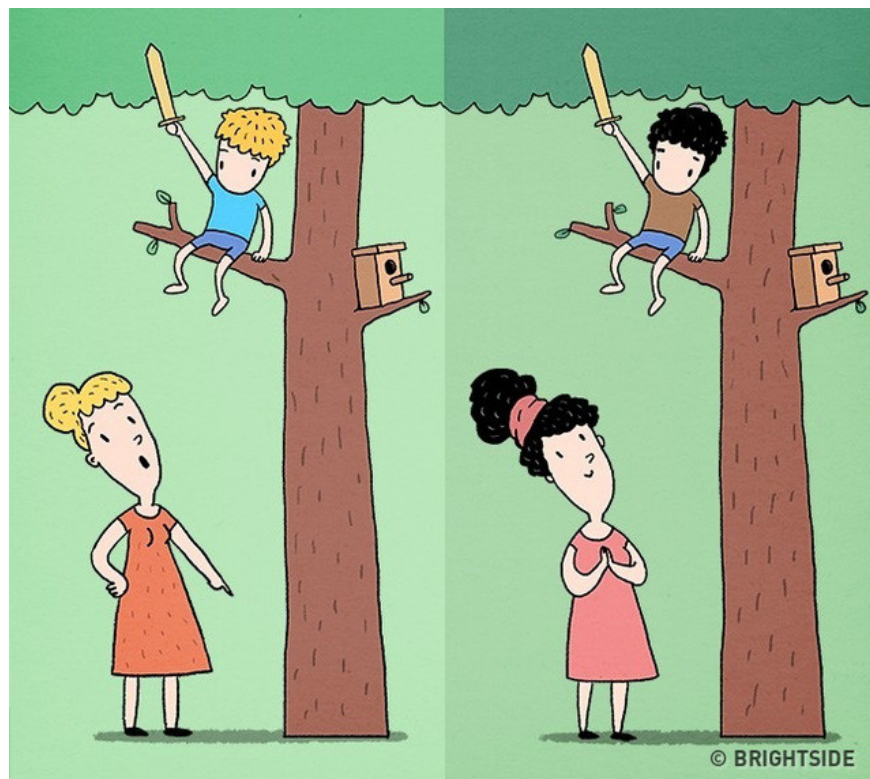

Contrary to the views of many mothers, Jewish mothers do not spend too much time caring about their looks. When the children have fun and eat outside, it is difficult to avoid dirty clothes, limbs covered with mud or food. The reason because Jewish mothers believe that keeping things clean When going out is not necessary, because it will limit the process of playing, learning from life for children.

5. Please accept the harassment

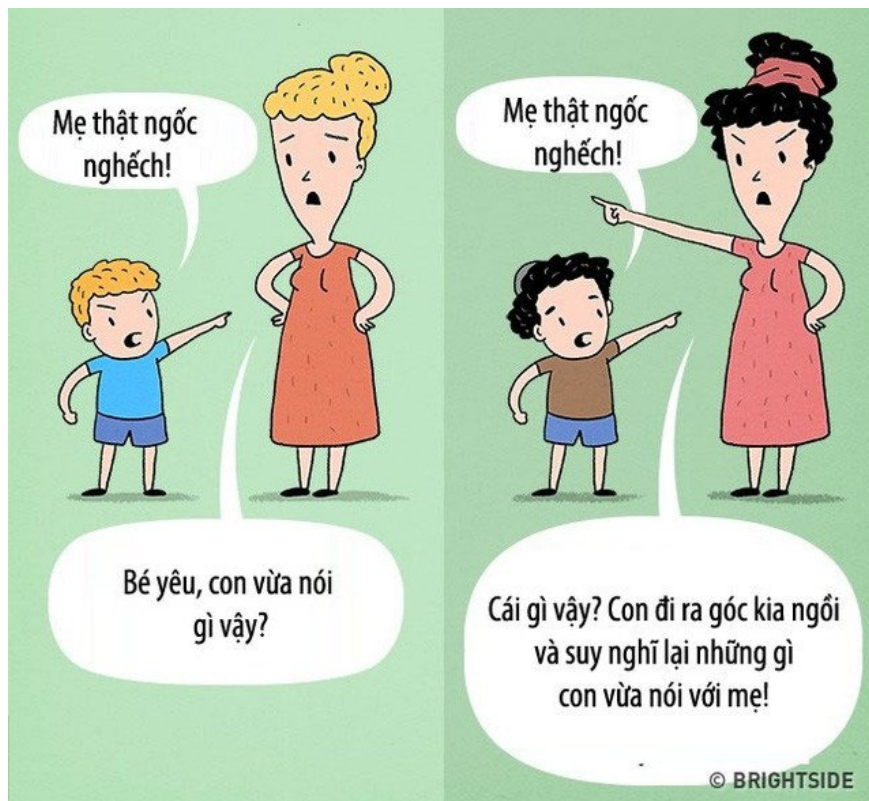

For Jewish children, when they have fun, they are free to harass toys without fear of parents yelling or threatening, because Jewish parents understand that children are always playful and curious with everything around and this will improve as they get older. Instead of yelling at children about not being neat, they allow them to be free to show up in the way they like. That is the way for me to develop thinking.

7. Let children delight in exploring

Jews never charge to hold the whip after me to ask me not to do this, not to play the other. Because they understand that children are hyperactive and excess energy, so they need to be 'discharged' energy out. With this way of education, it will help children be more confident and successful when they grow up.

7. Respect the family

Jewish children are allowed to be free in many things. Even drawing on a wall is seen as a sign that the child has a painting potential. Although Jewish children are free to speak and do a lot of things, everything has its limits. The family element is highly valued and no Jewish child is allowed to offend or show disrespect to his parents. If that happens, parents will punish them very badly.

8. My father's job, I have my mother's job and I have my job

From a young age, Jewish children have learned how to be independent, so in their own personal lives, children will make their own efforts, not needing to help their parents too much. .

9. Knowing to get errors when doing wrong

In the process of maturity, children are hard to avoid making mistakes in their lives. So instead of punishing or shouting, Jewish parents only gently told them to recognize their mistake to correct. When having the right jobs, it will be encouraging rewards.

10. Every effort is worth noting

Jewish parents think that any achievement of a child should be rewarded. Even when she saw the words that were written on the napkin, she proudly introduced them to the whole family as a picture.
