

11 interesting and quirky historical facts that make everyone think it's a joke

Here are 11 interesting and quirky facts from history, after listening to it you will definitely not believe they are real.

Here are 11 interesting and quirky facts from history, after listening to it you will definitely not believe they are real.

During World War II, Juliana, a Great Dane, extinguished a fire bomb by urinating on it. For this feat, the dog was awarded the Blue Cross Medal.

Alexander the Great may have been accidentally buried alive. Scientists believe that Alexander suffered from Guillain-Barré syndrome, a neurological disorder. And they believe that, when he was buried, he was still mentally aware and only paralyzed.

In Ancient Rome there were female gladiators but very rarely, they were called Gladiatrix or Gladiatrices.

The most successful pirate in the history of the world was a woman. Her name is Ching Shin, and she is the wife of the Commander of the Red Flag Fleet. Ching Shih became one of the most powerful captains in the fleet. This female pirate has up to 200 oceanic ships, 800 small warships near the shore and quite a few boats on the river. Under her command there were 50,000 pirates, 10 times the number of marines in the US Navy at that time.

The Avengers - a series of famous superhero squads around the world. However, not everyone knows that The Avengers is also the name of a group of Jewish assassins who hunted down Nazi war criminals after World War II. More than 2,000 German POWs were killed by them. harmful.

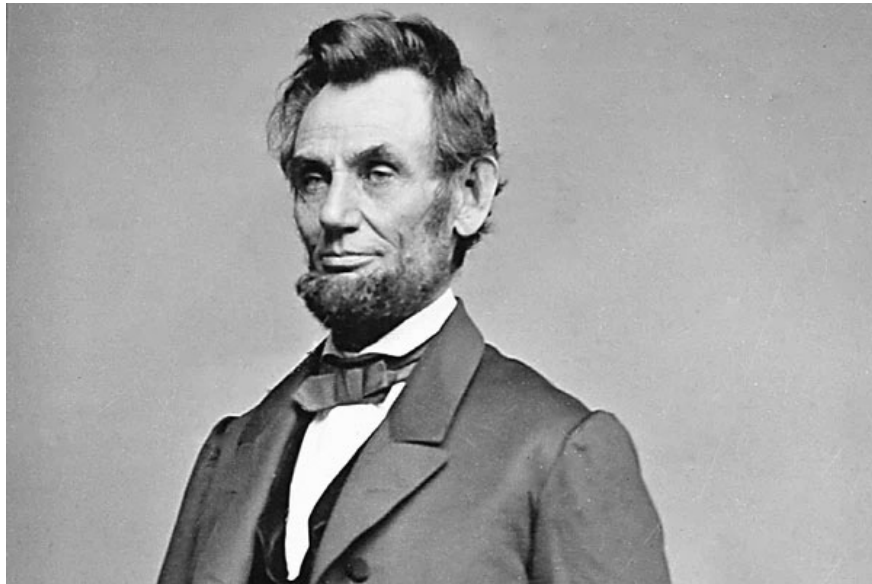

From 1912 to 1948, the Olympic Games held competitions and awarded medals for literature, architecture, painting, sculpture and music. Topics issued by the Olympics.

During a rabbit hunt for officers, Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte was rushed at him by angry rabbits, causing him to flee. After this rare accident, the famous French prince was haunted every time he saw a rabbit.

In Ohio, in the 1830s, ketchup was sold as an upset stomach by a doctor named John Cook. Ketchup was counted as a condiment in the late 19th century.

The late President of the United States, Abraham Lincoln was a famous boxer. During his career, he won 299/300 fights.

In 1386, a pig was executed by hanging in France after biting a child to death. The pig was taken into custody, put on trial, and found guilty of murder.

The Anglo-Zanzibar War that took place on August 27, 1896 was the shortest war in history, lasting 38 minutes to 45 minutes.

You finished reading the article "11 interesting and quirky historical facts that make everyone think it's a joke" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.