

12 simple tips to be a good father

After losing my father when I was only 12 years old, I was always grateful to have spent these moments with my father and hoped the following tips would help other fathers to love and play with their children. more. Invite you to consult!

1. 7 important lessons about money that every child needs to be taught
2. The story is worth pondering about an American mother who teaches her autistic child: "Please don't help my child!"
3. Developing thinking and teaching children to learn math with Lego toys

Being a father is one of the very special moments that most men in the world often respect, but they have never been fully aware of their influence on their children. After losing my father when I was only 12 years old, I was always grateful to have spent these moments with my father and hoped the following tips would help other fathers to love and play with their children. more. Check out 12 simple tips to become a good father !

1. Love "shines" above all

Share your love with your child. Show them that love will show them how to treat others, especially in future relationships when they grow up. Girls will often seek the qualities of their partners regarding their fathers, and boys will take their father's loving actions as an example to know how to treat their wives and children.

2. Never exaggerate spending time with your children

Children often remember moments of going out with their father. It is one of the things that you will never forget, as well as the memory you treasure for life. Therefore, whenever possible, go out and play with your children often.

3. Try to see your child's events

Remember when you were a child, how did your eyes sparkle when you saw your parents coming to see your event? Do this for yourself and more importantly, your child should be asked to participate in school events as much as possible, even if the event seems trivial. That for a child means that the whole world and your voice show how much you love your child.

4. Have your child participate in your favorite activities

A father can share the world of information by bringing children with him and his father and son will probably understand each other more than you think. Take your kids along to the golf course on Saturday or give them to your band practice, for example. It is not only a happy and meaningful time for your children, but it also feels like a special time you choose to enjoy and share what you like with them.

5. Talk to your child

This may sound normal but think about the last time you actually had a conversation with your child. Regardless of your age, you can talk from the animated film "My Little Pony" to "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles - Ninja Turtle" or buying a car with your child, which is very useful. and make the conversation more open.

Current media and technology really cause social disconnection, forcing us to use iPads instead of talking to each other. So put those gadgets away and spend time listening to their lives instead. You will never know what you and your child will know about each other.

6. The story before sleeping is the best

Spend time reading stories together, whether you're in the same house or thousands of miles away, thanks to modern technology, you can just read stories to your child before going to bed. Tell a very beneficial story for the young soul and the father-son relationship. It is a simple action that they will always remember and that will probably work with their children later.

7. Show gratitude every day

Children often learn many things from their father. Straight and simple. Act more than words. Show your gratitude every day with what you have and maintain it for your child every day. It is a lesson that helps them not to spoil and have a healthy view of life.

8. Always spend time playing with your children

We know that fathers have to work but still have time to rest and have fun with the children. Spend time playing with your children without worrying about work. Perhaps your kids may be the only one who gives the answer to solve the problem.

9. Treat people with respect and kindness

When showing kindness and respect to others in the community, your child will do the same. You are the first model the child has, make sure you are directing them to the right path.

10. Laugh more

Your children love to share joy and happiness. When you show them that you feel comfortable and really happy, they will follow the same attitude and create a habit of seeing the bright side of life in every situation.

11. Towards a purposeful life

Becoming an ideal role model for a father means that you need to encourage your child to do what they love and see life as a picture of your own destiny. The best way to convey this lesson is to live a purposeful life and pursue your happiness.

12. Say "I love you"

Even if your child thinks they are too big to hear " I love you ", it will ring around their ears and something they will never forget. Love always wins and when you continue expressing your love, they will do the same thing. Fathers are important to every child and leave a lasting impression that no one can replace.

Your value in the eyes of the child is more than what you can imagine. By sharing your love, happiness, spending time with your kids, you will create a positive impact that they will carry around with you for life. Sometimes, you hear people say that they regret missed opportunities when their parents are alive and that is what they wish they had been told before. Make sure you catch the opportunity while you can!

See also: Ask your child 4 questions each day, if you want to understand more

Having fun!

Author: Bobbi Klein

You finished reading the article "12 simple tips to be a good father" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.