Other about them, the most common must be makeup to hide their real faces. But where is my self-confidence, kindness and true beauty? Here are 12 interesting things that only "rustic" women can understand. Invite you to consult!

1. They understand that they are loved by their true nature

They are quite realistic and honest with themselves. When they are with others, they don't need to worry about being stared at like a comic book heroine. They feel completely relaxed and enjoy being seen by people in their true appearance.

2. Save time

Makeup and care for looks looks better than usual will take a long time during the day. And people who do not wear makeup can spend that time doing worthwhile jobs, on time appointments or reading an interesting book.

Makeup can make you slower than usual. Especially, for those who love beauty, make-up, they may be a little late in parties or appointments.

3. No need to please anyone

They understand that everyone's tastes are different, so they don't need to adjust their standards to meet other people's preferences, because they look silly at the time. Instead, they will feel beautiful and attractive to themselves, which is how to respect themselves.

4. Can save money

Be realistic with yourself! You know that beauty products often cost a small amount and whether you can guarantee what you will get back from them deserves what you have spent? Those who do not wear makeup can save a lot of money and time to please others through their looks and try to pursue other things more worthy.

5. They become attracted to others in some way

Naturally, most people are always fascinated by looks, but their appearance does not last forever, only goodness, warmth and affection are things that can be sustained. long. These wonderful qualities do not need to be beautifully decorated by the make-up on the face, but are honed with maturity by years and respectful attitude not only for themselves but also for the world around half.

6. Build sustainable relationships

People who do not wear makeup can be completely themselves but still master the attention of others. Anyone who wants to get close to them will care about their beauty in the soul and feel comfortable with their appearance. In other words, they care more about the beauty inside than the outside. These relationships are often sustainable, because it is not based on a reason for any benefit.

7. Acquire confidence

They appreciate and value what belongs to them, appreciate what is on their body and inner person. They do not need to hide what is not beautiful or weak. They are ready to face and handle everything, always confident to show off to the outside world.

8. Deal with changes of life

Whether you like it or not, we are all victims of age and time. For those who do not wear makeup, they will not run away from this truth but instead, they can cope with changes and instability in life.

9. Identify your own happiness

They understand what true happiness is. They cherish the simple, small things in life rather than complicating things or chasing the extravagant luxuries that makeup classes bring. They don't need to hide anything, especially their refreshing smile.

10. Don't worry about skin damage

Of course, they do not have to worry or fear about the highly allergenic and harmful ingredients contained in many different cosmetics.

11. Do not follow the crowd trend

They have independent thinking. Therefore, they will not be easily shaken by the things in advertising of products that people still want to use. Because they feel full and comfortable with what belongs to them.

12. Often heard by people

Because non-makeup people often pay attention to other profound aspects rather than just looks, many people will often care about their words and their insight. They do not have to endure glances, judgmental judgments from head to toe, but are always listened to by inner strength and beauty from within.
