

13-inch MacBook Pro Retina may come out in September

According to the 13-inch Slashgear MacBook Pro Retina will be released in September this year. This product can have the same configuration as the 15-inch model but is cheap and smaller in size.

This product can be released at the same time as Apple's latest iMac.

13-inch MacBook Pro Retina can have the same configuration as the 15-inch model. (Photo: Cnet).

According to the 13-inch Slashgear MacBook Pro Retina will be released in September this year. This product can have the same configuration as the 15-inch model but is cheap and smaller in size. Earlier, many rumors said, this model will be produced in the third quarter of 2012 with a screen resolution of 2,560 x 1,600 pixels.

MacBook Pro Retina was introduced in June this year. It is powered by a quad-core Core i7 processor based on 2.3GHz based on Ivy Bridge platform, RAM 8GB, 256GB SSD and Nvidia GeForce GT650M graphics card with 1GB VRAM.

The new generation iMac has a constant design.(Photo: Focus).

In addition, Apple may also introduce a new generation iMac at the same time as the 13-inch MacBook Pro Retina. According to analyst Ming-Chi Kuo, with the current supply situation, "Apple" will have a desktop shortage by the end of July. Meanwhile, August will be a good time for the company to start. produced iMac to prepare for release in September.

The new iMac model was previously rumored to use an Ivy Bridge Core i5 or i7 chip with the design unchanged from the previous generation. Many sources said that this model can support watching TV like Apple TV.

You finished reading the article "13-inch MacBook Pro Retina may come out in September" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.