

14 human sensations can be experienced in 10 seconds before dying

Dr. Raymond Moody, the famous American psychologist, conducted a study of 150 people who experienced near-death experiences and divided the human sensations before death into the following 14 groups.

People cannot experience the feeling of death because each person has to die once and almost all are not revived except for a few special cases. Therefore, for humans, death is still a fear, an obsession, but we are also curious about it.

To answer that curiosity, the experts still constantly researched what feelings people felt when they died.

Dr. Raymond Moody, the famous American psychologist, conducted a study of 150 people who experienced near-death experiences and divided the human sensations before death into the following 14 groups. The order of these receptor groups is based on the emotional order of those who have recounted:

1. They hear people around or doctors say that they are dead and feel the physiological fatigue has reached its limit.
2. At the beginning of death there was a sense of pain that flashed but quickly dissipated and replaced an unprecedented peace and comfort, they found themselves soaring on an area only black.

3. They heard a strange sound echoing in the transmission space. A young girl who experienced a near-death experience said that she had heard a kind of sound like melody, it was a very beautiful music.
4. They feel pulled into a dark space as a cylindrical body without air. Feel it like a transition zone to bring people to the afterlife.
5. They remove their bodies. A rescued drowning man said that he had left his body, then went alone into the air, as gently as a feather.

6. Although trying to talk, others cannot hear your words.
7. Continuously coming into my body, but the feeling of time is no longer available.
8. Extreme vision and hearing. A man said that eyesight has risen to the utopian level and he has never felt so clear.

9. Feeling extremely lonely because you can't communicate with others.

10. Around there are other "people" coming to help them feel secure, calmly go through the world of dead people or to ring the bell of the other world that they have not heard.

11. The appearance of light has "humanity" very clearly in the last moment of near death experience.

12. They will see old memories of life as slow-motion film.

13. Meet limits that prevent them from going elsewhere. This limit has many different types for each person that can be water, smog, door, wild fence or a strip of road.

14. When you are at the boundary between life and death, if people are saved, your life will return. At that time, many people want to quickly return to the body, but this process depends on the level of penetration into the near-death process, even some people do not want to return to the body.
