Nature always contains unexpected mysteries. Many of the animals that exist on Earth are known to humans, but some of these creatures appear so strange that we don't believe they really exist.

Let's find out and discover the most exotic animals in nature. Surely you will feel extremely interesting and surprised with them.

1. Striped thigh deer - Okapi

This exotic "animal" animal is dubbed the African unicorn , living in the rainforests of the North and Northeastern Democratic Republic of Congo. Zebra-striped thighs look like hybrids between giraffes, zebras and even horses.

2. Panda ant - Panda Ant

This bizarre creature wears two black and white fur, just like the world famous panda. Although the name is panda and has the same appearance as ants, it is actually a hornless bee . Panda ants mainly live in South America, they possess extremely painful burns.

3. Snake scales - Bush Viper

This snake is striking with sharp scales that grow all over the body and look very peculiar. They can transform flexible body colors to easily hide in the forest without being detected. This snake venom is extremely powerful, the toxin secreted after each bite can be fatal for an adult.

4. Sea Pig - Sea Pig

The manatee has a scientific name, Scotoplane, which lives in a deep seabed of 3000-5000 meters and is closely related to sea cucumber. Although there are many legs, manatees can only move at a speed like a snail. Most people who read this marine creature will have a funny feeling, because their appearance is not the same as the name.

5. Butterfly poodle Venezuela - Venezuela Poodle Moth

This bizarre insect is covered with a white coat, prominent with bulging black eyes and long brown beards. This butterfly has been discovered in Venezuela since 2009, but so far people have not known much about them.

6. Blue parrotfish - Blue Parrotfish

The fish with the whole blue body and a golden spot on the head are extremely prominent. Adults have a big muzzle like a parrot bird so they are likened to a blue parrot on the sea. Their bodies have an average length of about 30-75cm.

7. Goblin Shark - Goblin Shark

This is one of the rarest shark species in the world, they are also called "living fossils". They have a very ugly shape with a long beak in the head and sharp teeth protruding. Goblin sharks can only be found in waters less than 100 meters deep, where sunlight is hard to reach.

8. Dragon spines - Thorny Dragon

This is a species of lizard living mostly in deserts in Australia. Covering the entire body are shaggy, sharp spines that help them avoid predators and threaten their enemies. They can disguise themselves by changing colors similar to their surroundings. This thorny lizard can live up to 20 years, more than most other lizards.

9. Giant soft shell turtle - Giant Softshell Turtle

This bizarre creature protects itself with a moist, soft skin. They often bury themselves in sand and just go out to eat and breathe air.

10. Snake penis - Penis Snake

This strange snake has a similar shape to the male genitalia. Although they look like snakes, they have close relatives with salamanders and frogs.
