If you are planning to reinstall the program or operating system (such as a new Windows installation), you need to find the software key (key CD) or serial number before reinstalling. Here are the top 21 free software key search tools.

If you are planning to reinstall the program or operating system (such as a new Windows installation), you need to find the software key (key CD) or serial number before reinstalling. Usually, the software key is on the original installation disc or in the order confirmation email. If you lose the software key you can find it in the Windows Registry, but this is difficult and even impossible. However, there are many software for finding free product keys on the Internet. Here are the top 21 free software key search tools.

1. Belarc Advisor

Belarc Advisor is system information software and is used by many people. Belarc Advisor has the ability to extract software keys for many programs, including programs for Windows. If the system is preinstalled with Microsoft Windows and you do not reinstall or upgrade it yourself, the search engine key can only find the software key that the computer manufacturer uses to install Windows. This software key may not work when reinstalling Windows. In this case, you must use the only software key on the sticker on the computer case. If you can't find the software key, you'll need to request a new Windows software key.
