Street art means refreshing the environment and attracting people's attention, even the following artists have conducted a special technique that makes their artwork more eye-catching and joyful. than. Street art artists have skillfully drawn 2D paintings that look like a part of space, creating a completely new, unique 3D space.

It seems to me that this is the most difficult part of creating works like this, likewise, each person can be created street art work at a particular place or even Releases are just a temporary place. It is not simply about drawing a frame or creating a work of art where you find it appropriate but behind it is the creative ability combined with the wild imagination of artists. For example, where we only see a vine and a brick wall or a railing, and these creative artists see an opportunity to create something that makes us think or make we smile.

There are famous artists who often do this work such as Oak Oak, Banksy and Ernestas Zacharevi?ius, here are just a few examples of artists who regularly create great "interactive" street art - interactions to understand. means direct interaction with the environment and little direct impact on observers.

Street artists are not the only ones who realize the value behind art works interacting with the surrounding environment - brilliant ads in the surroundings are also designed according to this goal.
