Only in 1986 had four giant submarines of four different countries mysteriously disappeared . Will this historic tremor tragedy involve a series of "ghosts" on the ocean 8 years ago?

Before learning about these terrible tragedies, see the unpredictable mysteries under the ocean that people discovered before the disappearance of several years.

Mysterious under the ocean

In January 1960, the Argentine Navy discovered two huge vehicles believed to be strange-looking submarines in the bottom of Encerrada Bay, in the city of Ushuaia, Argentina.

This supposedly submarine object travels at three times the speed of the world's most advanced submarines, which confuses many countries.

Strange objects are believed to be submarines

After being confirmed that these strange objects are not the responsibility of any country, including the US and the Soviet Union, the navies of the countries have strip tons of bombs in 10 consecutive days to the location of 2 ". objects "anchored.

The two "submarines" did not respond to the attack but "ran away" at terribly fast speeds that made military "stunned", then mysteriously disappeared in the Atlantic Ocean.

A month later, in the Caribbean Sea , the US Navy discovered another " strange object " moving at an incredible speed of 370 km / hour.

This object has not been clearly explained, the US Navy continues to "clash" other objects moving in the deep water at a speed of 300km / h in the waters near Bermuda " demon triangle " in 1963. Article scary it can climb up and dive to a depth of 6,000m and only take a few minutes.

Later, these strange objects were also discovered in many different seas in the world such as the Mediterranean, Brazil, New Zealand . They moved at three times the speed of the most advanced submarines. gender without causing noise or air bubbles makes the military all over the world be surprised, surprised. They call them "ghosts of the ocean ".

What do these "ghosts" have to do with successive disappearances of four state-of-the-art military submarines of the US, France, Israel and the Soviet Union?

Four tremors of submarine tremors in 1968

1. Scorpion Submarine - US Navy

On May 22, 1968, the Scorpion submarine " pride of the US Navy " after patrolling in the North Atlantic Sea was suddenly mysteriously missing, along with 99 people present on the Scorpion, including US Navy forces and Soviet experts. Before disappearing, the ship was equipped with two Mark 45 anti-submarine torpedoes and a nuclear reactor .

Shortly thereafter, the United States aggressively deployed its "pride " search campaigns but had no results.

On June 5, after nearly two weeks of searching, the US Navy was forced to issue a notice, the USS Scorpion (SSN-589) was missing. The cause of missing until now has not been clarified.

In October of the same year, debris of the ill-fated submarine was found in the Atlantic seabed at a depth of 3,000 meters, 740 kilometers southwest of the Azores (Portugal). This is one of the most bloody tragedies in US military history.

Many people said that the torpedo explosion on the ship caused the whole Scorpion and 99 people on board to suffer the same fate.

However, the hypothesis has no valid evidence. Therefore, Scorpion submarines became one of the unexplained mysteries in American military history.

2. Minerve submarine (S647) - French Navy

Launched in May 1958, after 10 years of operation, the French Daphné class submarine Minerve (S647) was one of four missing submarines in 1968.

Minerve submarine (S647).

At about 8 am on January 27, 1968, while traveling in the waters 46 kilometers from Toulon, the Minerve suddenly disappeared.

As scheduled, Minerve will return to base after an hour of patrol, but people have never heard of it. All 52 people on board, including 6 military experts have mysteriously disappeared with the ship at an estimated depth of 1,000 to 2,000 meters.

The French Navy immediately dispatched the aircraft carrier Clemenceau and the SP-350 ship Denise, under the command of expert Jacques Cousteau, to find the Minerve submarine but to no avail.

February 2, 1968, the French Navy stopped searching and declaring the ship missing. In fact, the French Navy continued its search for Minerve in 1969, but until now, the ship's whereabouts remain a mystery.

As well as the disappearance of the US Scorpion submarine, many theories about the cause were given, people were inclined to bad weather.

3. Submarine INS Dakar - Israeli Navy

INS Dakar is a T-class class submarine of the Royal Navy. In 1965, Israel acquired and tested diving in Scottish waters.

On January 9, 1968, after a trial of diving, INS Dakar exported Scotland to return to Israel. However, it was mysteriously missing on the way back along with 69 people in the ship.

After more than 30 years of intense searching, searching, no fragments or traces of the ship were found until 1999.

It is found in the seabed between the island of Cyprus (eastern Mediterranean) and Crete. However, the wreck found but the cause of it sinking, so far, no expert has decoded.

4. K-129 Submarine - Soviet Navy

K-129 (1960) is a modernly equipped diesel submarine, used by the Soviet Navy in 1960.

Soviet submarine K-129.

After completing two 70-day sea patrols, the ship with 98 sailors, equipped with the three most modern nuclear ballistic missiles continues to be the third patrol task starting on 24 / 2/1968.

However, on March 8, 1968, no contact signal of the ship was transmitted. The Soviet Navy issued an alert and opened a large-scale search.

However, every effort went into a dead end when no wreckage of the ship was found. Just like the "fate" of the three submarines mentioned above, Soviet submarines are also mysteriously missing.

No matter how it was found, the reason why they were sunk so far has not been answered correctly.

There are reports that, before disappearing or sinking deep in the sea, people saw "ocean ghosts " circling 4 submarines and quickly disappeared.

This report is not much help because even the "identity" of "strange objects" cannot be determined, so the "fate" of those supreme submarines is buried. mysterious ocean.
