

5 best AI extensions for Gmail

Email communication is becoming increasingly important because so much of our workflow depends on it.

Email communication is becoming increasingly important because so much of our workflow depends on it. But if you're a regular user, managing your inbox effectively may not be as easy as you think.

To this end, Gmail extensions provide a much more organized and intuitive gateway to your inbox. Additionally, you can rely on additional AI functionality to enhance productivity. We'll explore some of the top AI tools to help enhance the Gmail experience in today's article.

1. Remail

Drafting and responding to emails can be difficult, and it's easy to become overwhelmed by the volume of emails. Luckily, Remail is an AI extension that helps generate quick email responses, thus saving a lot of time.

With Remail, you can choose between positive and negative responses to any email. The AI will then scan the message and draft an appropriate response based on what you selected.

Additionally, you can choose a custom response. In that case you give the AI a summary of what you want to answer. Remail is a great tool for responding to tons of emails quickly, especially when time is short. It offers a free limited plan and 3 other subscription plans with more features.

2. Ellie

Like Remail, Ellie is another AI extension designed to help you create email replies.

After downloading the extension, you can highlight text from emails to generate responses. It also allows choosing a suitable tone, so you can express anything like respect, annoyance or simplicity.

You can also include additional contextual information to further improve the quality of your answer. Furthermore, by adding files and web pages, Ellie learns from them to help create more contextually relevant answers.

3. Mailbutler

Mailbutler is a more powerful AI extension that lets you do more than compose emails. You can manage your tasks, schedule, and email tracking all in one place. It's especially useful as an assistant to better understand your email's reach and take control of your inbox.

When you send an email, you can check how many times the email was opened in a specific period of time. Additionally, you can use email scheduling tools to help you have better control over your work.

In Mailbutler, you can choose from several templates to quickly compose emails. You can use the smart assistant feature to improve or refine the content of each email.

4. Compose AI

Compose AI is a Gmail extension that can write and edit emails, as well as provide feedback when you need it. Like most assistants, you use prompts to tell the AI what you want to do - from creating emails from scratch to adjusting draft content.

Compose AI also has an autocomplete feature, which is useful because it makes text predictions and suggestions, making composing emails easier. Similarly, its email editing feature, Rephrase, can help you change the length, tone, or word choice in selected text.

5. ChatGPT Writer

ChatGPT Writer is an open AI-powered tool that works with Gmail to provide writing and editing support. We all know the impressive things we can do with ChatGPT. However, this extension goes further by integrating into mailboxes. You can benefit from ChatGPT Writer's powerful interface to effectively manage your email communications.

Additionally, you can create responses in different languages ??and use the translation tool to read text in other languages. ChatGPT Writer is a smart AI tool that any email user will benefit from thanks to its great text generation capabilities and integration with Gmail.

You finished reading the article "5 best AI extensions for Gmail" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.