

5 best free photography learning websites

Here are 5 best photography teaching websites, the teacher who teaches almost everything you need to get the best photo.

Exploring the world of photography can be a rather expensive hobby if you are not used to online learning. There are many photography websites that offer knowledge from basic to advanced instead of attending classes or spending money pursuing hobbies, especially these websites are completely free. Here are 5 best photography teaching websites, the teacher who teaches almost everything you need to get the best photo.

1. Digital Photography School

Considered one of the best learning communities for photographers and graphic designers, Digital Photography School offers a lot of instructional videos, camera, device and final product introductions. . All are free. This website also regularly provides updates from basic to advanced along with very detailed explanations and examples. With the extremely high coverage they provide, Digital Photography School also has bonus tips and tricks sent via email (usually not posted on blogs).

2. The Argus Photo

This is a simple and very inspirational blog that brings many beautiful images, accompanied by techniques, tricks, tips for taking beautiful photos . Along with that, the site also offers trending tips, news and almost everything you need to know about photography. This is a great page to awaken the artist spirit inside you, just scroll a few times on the page until you feel like holding the camera up.

4 Tips for Perfect Portrait Posing

April 28, 2016 - Stephanie Kay-Kok

Not knowing how to pose a model is one challenge beginners can struggle with. It's an important step to master, though. You need to know how to pose your model if you want to create perfect portraits. Below are some tips to help you get the right poses for each portrait you take. Remember that reading alone won't immediately improve your skills. Practice makes perfect! These ... [\[Read more...\]](#)

POPULAR POSTS

230 Free Lightroom Presets You Will Love

55 Beautiful Flower Pictures for Your Inspiration

40 Great Photographer Portfolio Websites for Inspiration

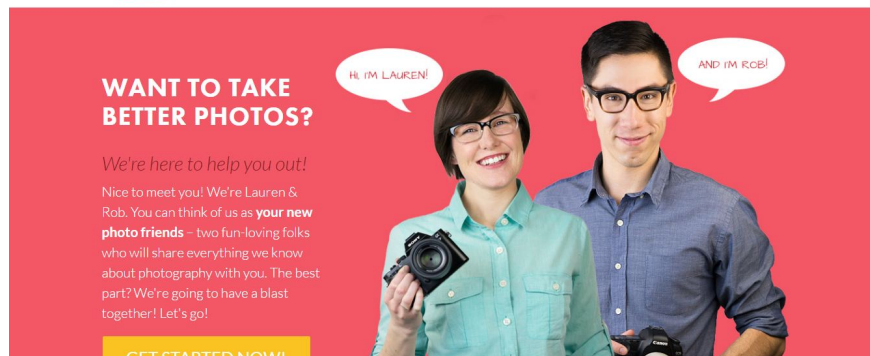

60 Inspiring Examples of Black and White

3. Photography Concentrate

This website is operated by Rob Lim and Lauren Lim - two people who share their love of photography in great detail. Although there are a few guidelines on the page, you can learn most of the photography knowledge they provide for free.

Tutorials Blog About

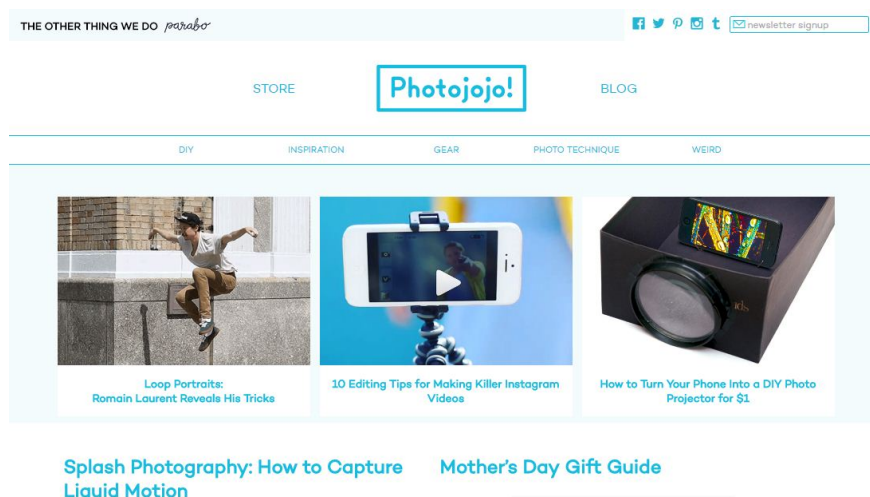

4. Photofocus

Another blog rich in content about how to take photos is Photofocus with many tips, reviews, podcasts . This site also provides knowledge and skills using Photoshop photo editing software and other photo editing tools - all for free. Photofocus covers all topics, from camera batteries to shadows . and you can learn to hone your skills.

5. PhotoJojo

One of the most convenient and comfortable ways to get all the information about photography without having to browse the Internet all the time, PhotoJojo is one of the richest content sources. You can use tricks and tips to capture the best pictures without paying a penny. Choosing to follow the news (Newsletter Subscription) from PhotoJojo will also be a wise decision.

To be able to become a professional photographer needs a lot of learning and practice. Rich knowledge sources from the above websites along with the process of holding the device will help you gradually get good photos. Don't forget to bookmark them and visit them every day, just to get inspired and to learn more about photography every day.

Author: Grishma Giri

You finished reading the article "5 best free photography learning websites" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.