

5 reasons why 'the more intelligent, the harder it is for a lover'

Do you know why the more intelligent people, the harder it is to have a lover? If you belong to a group of smart people then surely your love story will be more difficult than that of others.

1. 11 characteristics of people with smart thinking

If you are a group of smart people, your love story may be more complicated than others. Finding love and maintaining that relationship seems to be quite difficult for you. You may feel that you are often misunderstood or completely uncertain about things you have done wrong. The answer will make you feel surprised because the biggest difficulty is because of the high IQ.

Smart people seem to have everything - they excel at people from school, work goes " up like a wind ", the social life is very interesting and their personality is Can win for anyone. However, they often face a lot of difficulties in finding their own suitable half to love and maintain a long-term relationship.

If you are an intelligent person, then it is very likely that your intellect is responsible, making your love life much more complicated than you like him. Or if your lover is extremely intelligent, you will understand his unusual behavior. Here are 5 reasons why "the more intelligent, the harder it is for a lover" .

1. Smart people always value freedom

This seems to be " harsh " because smart people often value their freedom more than anything else. As independent thinkers, they often transfer quality thoughts to other areas of their lives. It is not that they do not feel the love and necessity of a particular person, but even if they are in a happy relationship, their need for freedom is still not stop there. This creates tension with their lovers, especially when the two go together. Simply, their lovers only need to understand and respect their time and personal space in order to build a strong and lasting relationship.

2. Never rush in relationships

When smart people are still in the single phase, they always make conscious decisions. Although they themselves seem to be disinterested in those who can become their half, sometimes it is better to be single for a period of time. Because of that, they will have more time to think about past relationships, find mistakes, learn more about themselves and grow up. This feature makes them look distant and cold, but in fact they do not feel " lacking " to rush into relationships for the wrong reasons in the past.

See also: Why is it foolish to say that when you love the smartest women?

3. Cannot prevent yourself from analyzing everything

Very intelligent people seem to have an incredibly complex brain. They often think things a little too much and carefully analyze so they can harm themselves because people cannot wait for them to consider all the advantages and disadvantages. However, many times this quality helps them escape falling into " love net " so quickly. In love it is not good if you analyze too much, sometimes we realize that blindly loved by natural emotions is also a good thing.

4. Too careful

Just like what is mentioned above, smart people almost do not believe in the concept of love at first sight. It is not because they lack romance but simply because they recall the pain from the past more strongly than others. Therefore, they tend to be more cautious in relationships. Although smart people seem skeptical, it is just a mechanism to protect themselves against the trauma they have to go through.

5. Consider career more important

Smart people often focus on career rather than love. This is not surprising because after all the above mentioned things, they tend to be misunderstood a lot in relationships, how to make them feel better at work, to be beaten High price and more successful. Career is what makes them feel comfortable because it gives them the opportunity to use reasonable aspects and their own analysis to help them work more carefully. This is why they often marry a little later than their peers, which may benefit them, because when there is a good job, a stable career they can enter into marriage. in a complete and successful way.

Refer to some more articles:

1. 8 detective movies will make you smarter
2. How can smartphones change our way of thinking?
3. 9 sayings that smart people never use in everyday communication

Having fun!

You finished reading the article "5 reasons why 'the more intelligent, the harder it is for a lover'" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.