

5 things to do before selling phones to others

Your phone is still in good working condition but you want to change it to a new smartphone? And of course there is no reason that you will not sell it to supplement the cost of buying a new phone. So before you sell your phone, what do you need to keep in mind? Please refer to the article below to get detailed information.

Your phone is still in good working condition but you want to change it to a new smartphone? And of course there is no reason that you will not sell it to supplement the cost of buying a new phone. So before you sell your phone, what do you need to keep in mind? Please refer to the article below to get detailed information.

1. 6 things to do to sell Android phones are priced
2. Things to do before breaking up your iPhone

1. Delete personal data on the device

Before "parting" the old friend has been with me for many years, do not forget to copy all the photos, personal videos that record memories, or important documents related to work, Then clean them up. Although only a normal person, who knows what will happen to you when these data fall into the wrong hands. Anyway, be more careful, right? Just a few simple steps but can save you from unexpected and dangerous situations.

Photos can be spread on social networks.

2. Delete the entire application history, messaging

It is shy that private conversations or secrets of "hearing drop" are lost and others can read it right? What could be more harmful to the social network to make jokes, like or be used by bad guys to intimidate. In this world anything can happen, so be wary of all these cases by logging out of all messaging applications, Facebook, Messenger, email, .

Do not let your message history be stolen.

3. Exit the system login account

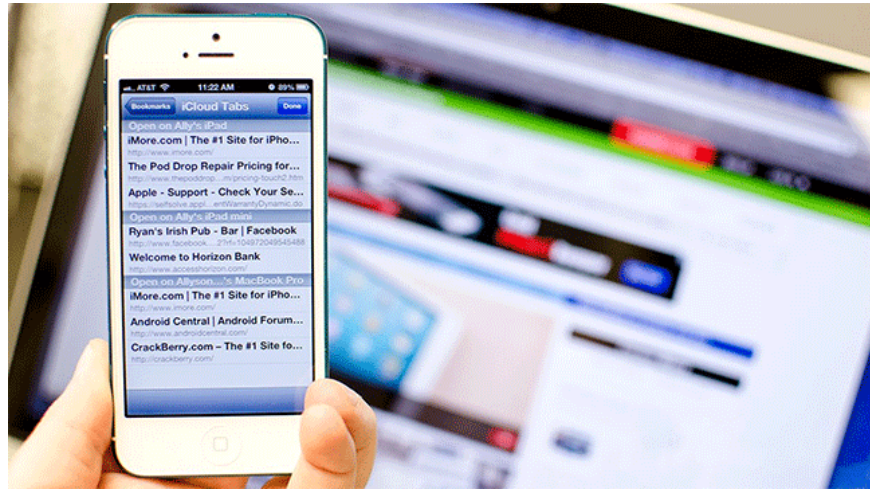

Anyone who uses a smartphone now needs to have a system account that can be iCloud of iOS or Google on Android to be able to download the app to the computer or take advantage of all the important related functions. But this account usually contains a lot of personal information for many services, even for online payment. So, before handing your device over to others it is best to exit the entire account including the system account, application login account to avoid the unfortunate things that can "hit" when not good.

Please exit iCloud on iPhone.

4. Delete browsing history

As mentioned, personal information is always an unpredictable risk for you if exposed. Many people have a habit of saving username and password on mobile web browser. In fact, this is only safe when the device is still in your possession, and once you have decided to "hand" it to someone else, you may now face some troubles from the habit. Harmful familiar. Because, many websites will save the information of the bank account, so inadvertently you have abetted and created an easy opportunity for bad guys to take advantage of your money.

Remember to clear your web browser history.

5. Exit the connected control device

Today, technology allows people to remotely control on their smartphones, such as using iPhone to control Samsung TVs, searching for parking spots on the phone, even following Watch the security system in your house, . And of course no one wants their data to be tampered with and monitored from some remote place after selling an old smartphone, even when it is unintentional or intentional. Therefore, before attempting to sell the phone to a stranger, reset the phone to its original state and solve these problems.

Don't forget to exit the connected control device.

Above are 5 actions you need to perform before selling your phone to others. You should follow these precautions to protect yourself from outside dangers.

Maybe you are interested:

1. 5 "absolute" things should not be done if you first use an Android phone
2. 5 customizations to do immediately when buying a new smartphone
3. Top 6 most worthwhile phones for students

You finished reading the article "5 things to do before selling phones to others" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.