For many other translation applications, when you are not connected to the Internet, you cannot use it. With Google Translate, users can still use it freely without a network connection. To use the offline translator you just need to download the language pack by going to the list and selecting the language you want to use and clicking download. Each set of language only accounts for 35 MB to 45MB in your device. In these language packs will be accompanied by automatic translation tool (NMT) to help complete the sentence translation, instead of translating each part of the sentence.
