6. Tubi

Tubi is one of the best free streaming platforms with a huge catalog of movies and TV shows across a wide range of genres. Whether you're looking for comedy, action, horror, drama, or old classics, Tubi has you covered. In addition to on-demand content, Tubi also has live TV.

Backed by Fox, Tubi is a legitimate service that uses an ad-supported model to stay afloat. It doesn't require you to sign up or pay a dime—you can stream its entire catalog without limits. Unless you want to unlock features that require a subscription, like watchlists, recommendations, and progress tracking, Tubi won't bother you.

5. Pluto TV

Paramount's Pluto TV is another prominent free streaming service that requires no login or subscription. Like Tubi, it offers a mix of live TV channels and on-demand content, including movies and TV shows.

You can choose from a variety of genres to suit different tastes – horror, thriller, drama, comedy, etc. Pluto TV's live TV section is also a treasure trove of movies with hundreds of themed channels, including action channels, sports, classic comedies, etc.

4. Crackle

Another user-friendly, no-strings-attached streaming site that's still up and running is Crackle. Like Tubi and Pluto, there's no need to sign up or pay — just hit the play button and start watching.

Crackle has been around for years, and its standout feature is its curated library of movies and TV shows that spans a wide range of genres. It offers original programming and is available on multiple platforms, including Smart TVs, mobile phones, and streaming boxes. The only downside is that it doesn't have the most extensive catalog compared to the alternatives. As a free streaming site, Crackle uses the same ad-supported model as the previous options.

3. YouTube

YouTube may not be the first platform that comes to mind when it comes to feature films, as it's chock-full of user-generated content. However, in addition to user-generated content, YouTube also hosts a surprising number of full-length films, many of which are officially uploaded by studios, distributors, or licensed channels like Freevee, Popcornflix, and Paramount Vault.

You can find everything from classics and indie favorites to action and family movies. Many titles are ad-supported but can be watched for free without an account.

2. Popcornflix

Popcornflix will continue to offer no-login, no-fee streaming in 2025, making it a solid choice for instant access to entertainment without having to jump through many hoops. In addition to movies, the service also includes TV shows similar to its alternatives.

Unlike alternative services that don't require an account, Popcornflix goes even further by not including any sign-up or login options.

1. Fawesome

Fawesome is another free movie streaming service whose main mission is to provide a no-strings-attached, free, and subscription-free option. The site boasts an extensive catalog of over 100,000 movies and TV shows. The site does a great job of curating themed playlists like 'Martial Arts' and 'Saving the World,' making it easy to find content that fits your mood.

You can watch movies on Fawesome on almost any device, including mobile devices, streaming devices, many Smart TV operating systems, game consoles, etc. Like Popcornflix, this site does not offer an account creation option as both are controlled by a single company.
