

7 Useful Google Chrome extensions for web users

List of 7 extensions that we introduced in this article are extensions that have been carefully selected and very useful in daily use.

Network Administration - Some Google Chrome extensions are quite useful for people who work with the web regularly. List of 7 extensions that we introduced in this article are extensions that have been carefully selected and very useful in daily use.

1. Meta Inspector

To view a site's meta tag, the most commonly used method is to view the page's source code. Meta Inspector will simplify this process and allow you to view meta tags right on the page.

This extension is primarily equipped for web developers, or those who need to validate the description tag for their site complying with the Google Guidelines, but it is also used by those who prefer scouting to competitor's site. Not only does it allow you to view meta tags at the beginning, it also allows you to view no-follow, do-follow links on the page.

2. Google Reader Checker

If you rely on Google Reader to promptly update what happens in the web, this extension will really be useful for you. Google Reader Checker will check your Google Reader on a regular basis and notify you whenever it's a new feed upgrade.

3. Resolution Test

Do you know how your website will display in different screen resolutions? It is possible to do this if you change the screen resolution manually, but the extension will help you to implement this problem more simply. Just click on the icon and select the resolution you want it to display. The browser will automatically resize to the required resolution size.

4. Speed ??Tracer

Speed ??Tracer helps you find out what is slowing your site. It analyzes your website for items such as Javascript execution and analysis, recalculates CSS style and match selection, manages DOM Event, loads network resources and many other issues and displays the results below. Digital or graphic format.

5. Chrome Bird

As a Web worker, you can't consider yourself without a Twitter account. Although there are many Twitter clients that you can use but nothing can beat this useful extension, this is an extension that lets you view your timeline and interaction with your account instantly.

6. Google Translation Bar

If you blog in a language other than English and want to know how to translate your articles into English, this extension will help you do that, it can translate your site instantly online.

7. Stumble Upon

StumbleUpon is one of the best services we use to research. Previously it was only used for Firefox, but now this service supports Google Chrome. However, unlike StumbleUpon extension in Firefox, Chrome extension loads the StumbleUpon Web toolbar instead. There is nothing to worry about here because you will still get the exact browsing experience in detail.

You finished reading the article "7 Useful Google Chrome extensions for web users" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.