

7 Ways to View Your Spotify Stats

Aside from Spotify Wrapped to summarize your year of listening, there are other fun ways to learn about your Spotify stats.

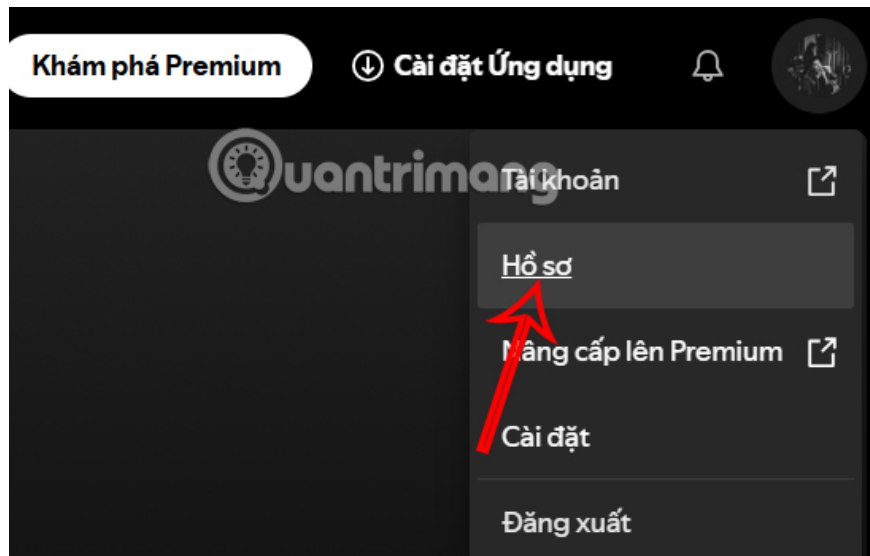

In addition to Spotify Wrapped to summarize your year of listening, there are other interesting ways to find out your Spotify stats. You can view your stats directly in the Spotify app or through an intermediary website. Here are the different ways to view your Spotify stats.

View stats via Spotify Sound Capsule

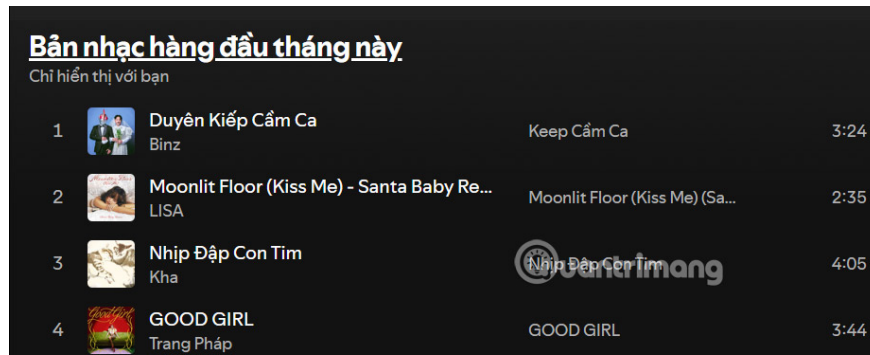

Your Sound Capsule on Spotify shows you a quick snapshot of your listening time, favorite artists, and songs. The data is presented month-by-month so you can see what happened each month and how active you were. The only downside is that it seems to be limited to premium users.

Check stats via Spotify website

If you don't have a premium subscription, simply go to the Spotify website and tap on your profile icon in the top right corner, select Profile.

You'll now see this month's Top Artists and this month's Top Songs via Spotify's analytics tool.

Step 2:

Next, you also need to agree to access your account. As a result, we also see the rating and statistics of your music taste on Spotify.

Spotify DNA Chart

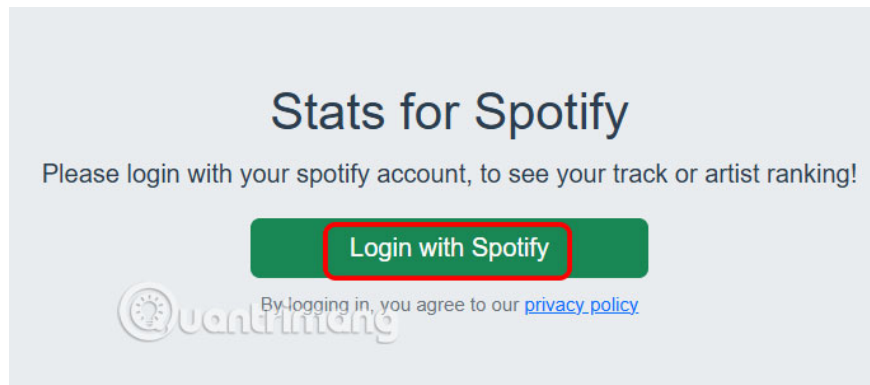

The site displays your music listening statistics in a DNA-like format. It shows your top tracks, but you can also select your top artists from the past month, 6 months, or any other time period.

Stats for Spotify

Those who just want a fairly simple analysis of their Spotify music journey should use Stats for Spotify. All you need to do is link your account to access the data, and once you're done, you can access your top tracks, artists, and genres from the past 4 weeks, 6 months, and 1 year.

<https://www.statsforspotify.com/>

We need to go to our Spotify account and agree to let the website access the account.

Now you choose the data content you want to see and click select.

Spotify statistics have the option to view over a 4 month, 6 month or 12 month period.
