Are you tired of installing a Windows computer? Why not try Mac, when Apple's technology has many interesting and superior points?

Are you tired of installing a Windows computer? Why not try Mac, when Apple's technology has many interesting and superior points?

Many people believe that Mac computers will make you more comfortable and happy to achieve higher productivity than Windows computers. And even though the Mac has never been the cheapest option, Apple's products are always "worth the money". Here are 8 reasons why you should consider Mac when you need to buy a new computer.

1. Mac is very consistent

Windows Vista reminds people of the mysterious Winchester building, a place with countless rooms connected by spiral staircases and secret corridors, twisted and troublesome. And every time Microsoft upgrades the operating system (in a fancy way of redecorating the building), the company often mixes, moves location or removes some features without ever stating the reason. Meanwhile, OS X's interface is minimalist, very logical, easy to use and easy to use.

2. Easy to predict

Source: Engadget Obviously, Mac is not an impregnable fortress. But if you spend thousands of hours interacting with both Windows computers (produced by many different manufacturers) and Mac computers, some people believe that Macs run more stable, more reliable.

" In my experience, Macs are less likely to hang, have fewer sudden crawling situations, better handling situations where memory is limited. Moreover, it starts / turns off faster too. " , a PC World expert commented.

3. Security

If cyber criminals fired at OS X with the same frequency and intensity that they have applied to Windows for years, it is obvious that the comfort and safety that many Macs are enjoying will end.

But for now, the following proposition is undeniable: A Mac computer that doesn't install any security software is far less likely to be attacked by viruses or malware than Windows computers.

4. No unwanted software

Windows will be a great operating system if it is not harassed by adware, spy software or other unwanted software. Sometimes these software are installed by the PC manufacturer itself in the Start menu, Desktop and System Tray. Meanwhile, the Mac was completely freed from this mess.

5. Pay attention to every detail

You can buy a perfect Windows computer with CPU, RAM, hard drive capacity and Mac-equivalent configurations, while the price is much cheaper. But make sure that the computer will not have the power adapter included so that every time you go on a business trip or travel, the whole barbarians will be wrapped neatly.

Then that machine will not be able to have an oversized console, "understand" the movements of your fingers. And sure enough, it will be heavier, bulky and worse designed than the Mac.

6. Apple is one of the best software companies in the world

Forget all Macs, iPods and iPhones for a while. Apple's application is not only creative but also interesting and useful, from iLife creative software to professional tools like Final Cut Pro.

Most of them only run on OS X. (The versions of iTunes, Safari and QuickTime for Windows computers are also fine, but Apple only has the highest performance on its hardware / software systems.)

7. Apple Store Genius Bar - priceless gem

Shop for a Mac and you will receive maximum direct and technical support from the company at no cost. Apple experts know your system very well. They can do everything from reinstalling the operating system to replacing broken keys.

Microsoft has also announced plans to train " Windows masters " to bring a similar experience to users at retail stores. Of course, Microsoft should try but the "follow-up" Genius Bar will not be simple at all. Why? Too many PC brands are running too many different versions of Windows, and no one can embrace the whole mountain of knowledge like that.

8. Macs are PC too!

Thanks to the Leopard OS Boot Camp feature, you will be able to run Windows and its applications on the Mac platform. Often this is not necessary and it also affects some advantages of Mac versus PC (for example, it will bring Windows security risks to users). But if you prefer to use Office 2007 than Office for Mac, this is a very interesting point.
