

9 ways to get rid of blandness and become more interesting

Being too light, asking for a little salt ... is a bland person who is not guilty, but if he wants to be more interesting, listening more and suggesting more opportunities is quite simple.

Bland people sometimes don't realize it, being bland is not a crime, but it makes your life boring and less friends.

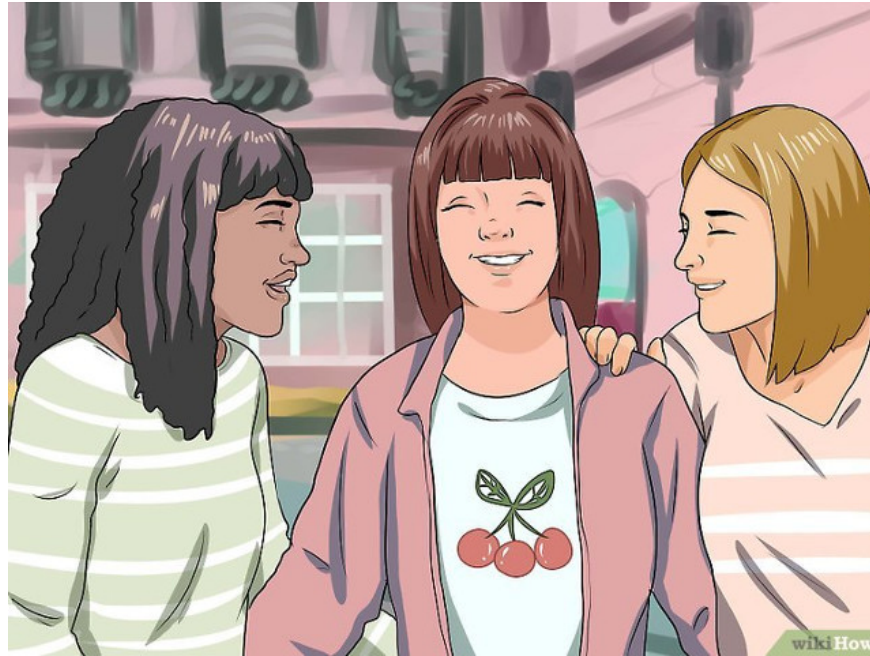

Those of us also want to have a more interesting life. To have an interesting life, you don't have to be a billionaire or a director, a celebrity to get attention from people.

There are many people who wonder, why are there very ordinary people but always become interesting people in the eyes of people around them. In order to become interesting, they have applied the following methods.

1. 10 signs of a bland man, but a bland person doesn't notice it

Interesting people are not the people who have experienced interesting things, traveled the world, or met important officials or were at major political events. Nor is it a person who talks in a culturally, historically or scientifically heavy language. They are the people who have developed the ability to listen and understand themselves, as an honest and credible journalist about the vibrations of their minds and hearts, who can tell us stories action, drama and magic in everyday life

1. Learn many new skills

Helping people around will make you feel happier. But to do that, of course you need to have certain knowledge, be it technology or life .

Once you have certain skills in all areas, you will become a spotlight of everyone around you.

2. Always be curious about every problem

Bland people often don't like to discover new things in life, because they think it's nothing interesting. That's why they are always a bland person, there will be no changes to life.

An author once said: "Have an open mind, always be curious. Allow a world complex with your own class. Learn more to expand your own vision" .

3. Learn to tell a good story

There are people who have very good education, who are experienced, overcome difficulties and challenges in life. However, they are still unattractive, boring people. The reason why? Just because they don't know how to connect, don't know how to lead their stories to people.

Want to be noticed, besides having a good story, interesting content, the way of expressing, reading is also the factors that attract people around.

In order to become a good storyteller, there are two ways, the first is to listen a lot, hear what the storytellers say, how they express their experiences. The second way is to read a lot, of course it is also for the purpose of learning how to express.

4. There are some good stories and ready to share it

Ok, now you know how to tell a story, but you can't meet 10 people with a single story. Prepare yourself for some stories to interact with and respond to others.

Study drama actors or TV presenter. They didn't go on the air, go on stage and wantonly say what they think in their heads, everything has a script and they memorize their script before answering, speaking to others. Have three types of stories available: entertainment, informative and sad stories to always be ready to "welcome" anyone you meet.

5. Learn to listen and express emotions

What do you do when people comment on some funny picture, have been handed down for a long time by the online community but you don't know anything about it?

Everyone laughed again and you just looked at it and started to ask what happened. It is not always too dependent on social networks but sometimes it is important to keep up to date on what people are talking about, new types of words that people are using to understand other people's stories and also contribute create rich living capital, create your own story and perfect your communication skills.

6. Speak up your thoughts

Interesting people will have their own opinions, so they are not afraid to express their views on something. If you keep silent before what other people say, they will quickly get bored of you.

When discussing or giving your own opinions, speak gently and politely so that listeners can understand and feel respected, thereby creating cohesion, making you more interesting.

See also: Smart people will know how to criticize and comment to others without losing their hearts

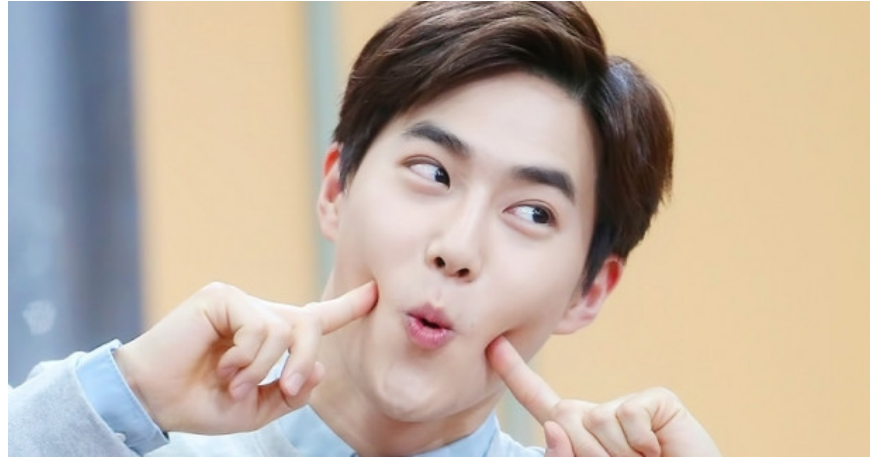

7. Read, read and read

If you have money and time, a trip to explore the world and learn new things will be a great thing. However, if you don't have time and money, you can also experience it directly on the books.

Not only in books but also in journal articles, blogs . Also a place containing valuable knowledge is worth reading and pondering. New, multi-dimensional information will help your knowledge become more abundant.

8. How to use words to talk funny

Have you noticed that many boring stories become attractive just because the words have been changed with more unique, interesting and funny words? Or simply, many people learn how to talk humor by using words that are graphic, suggestive, tricky . to make the story more vivid.

To use words to create humor for the story, you should read many books, skits, and short stories to cultivate your vocabulary. Read comedy to see how variations and their language are used. Molière's comedy can be your reference to its dramatic satire. Watching a lot of meaningful comedy (not funny) is also a way to improve your humor.

9. Make use of your own weird things

Being interesting is also related to the unique, strange elements that you alone have. For example, a person with a very humorous laugh, a difficult voice to hear is considered an interesting person. The reason why? Because they bring differences, it is what makes listeners notice.

Suppose there are dozens of people with the same story, the most attractive person will be the one with the most weird voice. Think about it!

This oddity comes from thinking, there are many people who always associate things, act to strange things, everyone has their own oddities, make use of it if you want to be interesting. .

You finished reading the article "9 ways to get rid of blandness and become more interesting" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.