

Acer Aspire 5100: laptop using AMD's dual-core chip

Acer Vietnam has just officially announced the Aspire 5100 laptop model with the AMD Turion 64 X2 dual-core processor that is quite attractive: $ 909. The first 80 customers who bought this product will be upgraded to free RAM to 1GB, and be q

Acer Vietnam has just officially announced the Aspire 5100 laptop model with the AMD Turion 64 X2 dual-core processor that is quite attractive: $ 909. The first 80 customers who bought this product will be upgraded to 1GB of free RAM, and will be presented with Targus machine protection and Acer optical mouse.

As the first AMD Turion 64 X2 laptop to be officially sold in Vietnam, the Acer Aspire 5100 represents the superiority of the intense exploitation of AMD's Direct Connect Architecture like Simultaneously support 32-bit and 64-bit computing platforms, AMD PowerNow technology! Optimizing battery life and improving performance, the integrated Enhanced Virus Protection hardware solution (used with Windows XP SP2) is capable of preventing virus spread and hackers' attacks.

Aspire 5100 laptop

Aspire 5100 uses Turion 64 X2 TL-50 processor (1.6GHz, 512KB L2 Cache), 512MB DDR2 533 / 667MHz RAM (can be upgraded to 4GB), 100GB hard disk, DVD-Super burner Multi (supports Double Layer 8.5GB DVD), integrated ATI Radeon Xpress 1100 graphics chip, and satisfies all usage needs, including 'multitasking' tasks such as graphics processing, 3D gaming and multimedia entertainment.

With a 15.4 'WXGA widescreen display supporting fast response time (16milis) and Acer CrystalBrite brightness enhancement technology for crisp display images, fast movements when playing games or watching DVD movies will be possible Show smooth and colorful also more vivid.

The Aspire 5100 has built-in wireless connectivity with the Acer InviLink 802.11b / g solution (WiFi 802.11a / b / g certified) that supports WiFi Acer SignUp wave capture technology, network card Gigabit Ethernet and 56K modem. 3 high-speed USB 2.0 ports, VGA port, PC Card slot (Type II), 3 audio jacks and 5-in-1 memory card reader are conveniently located on both sides of the camera body, the function buttons' One touch 'like Empowering Key (turn on Acer Empowering feature), Internet (quick open browser), Email (email check).

Aspire 5100 is equipped with advanced features such as Acer GridVista with the ability to split the screen into 8 work areas at the same time, features like Acer eDataSecurity (security), Acer eLock Management (device protection can be removed. left), Acer ePerformance Management (optimizing the ability to use system memory and application response time), Acer eRecovery Management (create backup and restore system), Acer eSettings Management (system installation) and Acer ePresenting Management (simplifying display resolution settings when connected to the projector).

You finished reading the article "Acer Aspire 5100: laptop using AMD's dual-core chip" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.