Accordingly, TravelMate B113 is equipped with 11.6-inch screen, weighing 1.36 kg, 2.5 cm thick. The screen gives a resolution of 1366 x 768 pixels but is not equipped with sensors to take advantage of Windows 8. This is quite understandable because the device is priced quite cheap, for only $ 399. At this price, TravelMate B113 is equipped with 2-core Intel Pentium 967 chip with 1.3 GHz speed, 4 GB RAM, 320 GB HDD. The most advanced model (600 USD) uses Core i3 Ivy Bridge processor, 4 GB RAM, 500 GB HDD. Acer said the 6-cell battery of the device can provide 7 hours of use. Users can also choose to upgrade to 8 GB RAM. It will start selling in Canada this week and will be available in the European market in the summer.
