

Acer's two-screen laptop costs nearly $ 2,000

Acer Iconia will be available on January 28 with prices up to 1,987 USD.

Acer Iconia will be available on January 28 with prices up to 1,987 USD.

Spain-based Acer has just announced the official price and the "shelf" time for its fancy dual-screen computer. Accordingly, users will start to own Acer Iconia from January 28. Selling price of this model is quite high, up to 1,499 Euro (about 1,987 USD).

According to Engadget, prices in different countries are often very different, especially in European markets, often higher than the US market, but the number will still be a big challenge for those who want to own it.

Acer Iconia is equipped with two 14 inch touch screens with a resolution of 1366 x 768 pixels, along with hardware including Intel Core i5 processor options (i5-480M / i5-560M / i5-580M corresponding speed 2.66 / 2.66 / 2.66 GHz with Turbo Boost technology reaching 2.93 / 3.20 / 3.33 GHz), 4GB RAM, Intel HD Graphics graphics chip and Windows 7 operating system Premium is pre-installed.

The hard drive also has capacities from 320 to 750GB with optional connections including Wi-Fi, 3G and a USB 3.0 port. In addition, this model also indispensable HDMI connection for entertainment needs with large screens.

You finished reading the article "Acer's two-screen laptop costs nearly $ 2,000" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.