The famous software company Adobe from the US has just opened an office in the capital London, England with the rooftop has a 150-meter jogging track and table tennis table for those who want to practice sports to do good work than.

This colorful office is located on the 7th, 8th and 13th floors of the White Collar Factory building, located on Old Street's Roundabout, which works for about 600 Adobe employees in the UK.

Adobe's office design mimics the company's software products, mirrors and lighting are placed in rooms like the renowned color filters of Adobe Photoshop software. Even the library, the play area and the restroom are arranged the same way.

Garrett Ilg , Adobe executive chairman in Europe, Middle East and Africa, said: 'This new office is equipped with the most advanced technology, bright space and creates an open atmosphere. will help employees work together more effectively. In addition, there are private areas for those who like to work alone'.
