

Adobe released a complete version of Photoshop for iPad

This will be the first version of Photoshop to fully support touch operations.

After a long time announcing the development of a complete version of Photoshop for iPad devices, Adobe today officially announced the first release version of this application. The Photoshop app for iPad has been redesigned to better fit the touch interface, along with Photoshop's core tools.

Users of supported iPad devices have been able to download and experience this Photoshop application for free in the App Store app store for 30 days. After 30 days of trial, the application will cost 9.99 USD / month, equivalent to about 230,000 VND, registered as a monthly subscription through paid via the application or via Adobe Creative Cloud.

However, Adobe says version 1.0 of Photoshop for iPad will not necessarily be as full of features as the Photoshop version for computers, but only focus on support and compatibility with Apple Pencil and deployment. Touch operation interface. However, Photoshop for iPad will still support opening and editing PSD files completely. Adobe is also committed to updating the missing features in the future, including a number of basic features such as brushes, masks or smart selection.

Looking ahead, at the Adobe MAX 2019 event held in November, Adobe may also introduce a full version of Illustrator for iPad and will be released next year.

Readers can download and experience the Photoshop application for iPad at this link. The app supports all iPad devices updated to iPadOS.

You finished reading the article "Adobe released a complete version of Photoshop for iPad" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.