Choose the right type of speaker

Currently, there are 2 main types of subwoofers: power subwoofer and steam subwoofer. Before making a decision on which speaker type is right for you, you need to understand the strengths and limitations of these two types.

Power subwoofers are built-in speakers, so there is no need to connect to the amplifier or other intermediate devices to output signals. You simply need a power plug, the signal cable from amplifier to sub can be used. The volume of the speakers gives strong, quality. However, the disadvantage is that the speaker is difficult to repair, customizing through the mixer is also quite difficult. Equipment is still quite heavy, difficult to move, not to mention quite high price.

Meanwhile, the subwoofer slightly produces deep and powerful volume, easily customized through processing devices such as mixer, amplifier. The device is usually lighter in weight than the same sub-power, easy to move, repair, replace and especially has a cheaper price than the sub-power. However, the device does not integrate the internal capacity, so it is necessary to buy an additional device to pull (amply). We recommend that you should use sub steam if you need to open a service, karaoke restaurant . by the easy adjustment and warm bass and stronger than the electric sub. And if it is to serve the needs of karaoke for the family, the sub power is a better choice by the convenience that it brings. Although not as strong as a sub, it is easy to install and easy to connect to the amplifier.
