

After the Game of Thrones, 'Khal Drogo' and 'Dwarfs' invited each other to film a Vampire

1 year after the Game of Thrones ended, Peter Dinklage and Jason Momoa will reunite to implement the brand new Vampire movie project.

Recently, Deadline has revealed the Good Bad & Undead film project of Legendary studio, with the participation of Peter Dinklage and Jason Momoa - two of the most popular actors in Hollywood today. In it, Peter will play Van Helsing, the descendant of a vampire hunter in the work of Dracula by Bram Stoker. However, instead of genuine labor, this guy cooperated with another vampire, led by Jason Momoa, to set up fake hunting and cheating money of honest people.

According to Deadline, Jason's character will continually destroy neighborhood villages in many different towns, to the point that people have to hire Van Helsing to resolve. What they didn't know was that the duo shook hands from before to set up a dangerous and dramatic vampire hunting drama. Everything went very well, everyone was happy because the village was peaceful again, and the duo the main characters, the budget was always good, no need to worry much. However, everything changed completely when Van Helsing received a contract to hunt vampires with huge bonuses, pushing him and his friends into a dangerous world full of horrible monsters. Disgusting and mysterious magic.

When a hunter cooperates with a vampire, making money is only a small matter.

Besides the two main characters, Good Bad & Undead will be molded under the talented hand of director Max Barbakow, who was in charge of the Palm Springs project to achieve the maximum score on the review page Rotten Tomatoes. In addition, with experience from Baywatch or Freddy vs Jason, screenwriters Mark Swift and Damian Shannon are also selected to send gold to piecing the script for this script.

Movie nerds around the world are probably no stranger to Peter Dinklage and Jason Momoa, because both of these actors have appeared in HBO's hit Game of Thrones series. In it, Peter as the 'dwarf' Tyrion Lannister has been with the series for 8 years, while Jason Momoa's 'Khal Drogo' only participated in the first season. However, the two still leave a lot of impression on the audience in different ways, and thereby helping their names to fly higher in the world of feature films. The interesting thing is that although they have been in Game of Thrones, Peter and Jason have never had a common scene at all.

Finally, Peter Dinklage and Jason Momoa will have the opportunity to appear together on the big screen together.

Talking about fiction genre, besides Game of Thrones, both Peter Dinklage and Jason Momoa have had their own experiences through a series of big superhero movie projects. Currently, Jason is an Aquaman that is loved by many of DC fans and will soon return in part 2, scheduled to release on December 16, 2022. And Peter was promptly left a mark in X-Men: Days of Future Past as Dr. Bolivar, and especially Eitri - who helped Thor create the Stormbreaker ax in the blockbuster Avengers: Infinity War. Therefore, the new fiction film Good Bad & Undead probably will not be able to make this duo difficult.

Earlier, Jason Momoa has also proved extremely excited to be fan and Peter suggested he should remake the movie Twins Arnold Schwarzenegger and Danny DeVito. The actor frankly said, 'No need to say much, just give me the contract here! How can I refuse Twins, I really love that movie. And Peter Dinklage is an amazing actor'. Although the Twins remake does not become a reality, at least these two actors will have the opportunity to work together in Good Bad & Undead.
