

Alexa and Cortana can now talk to each other, leaving Apple's Siri and Google Home

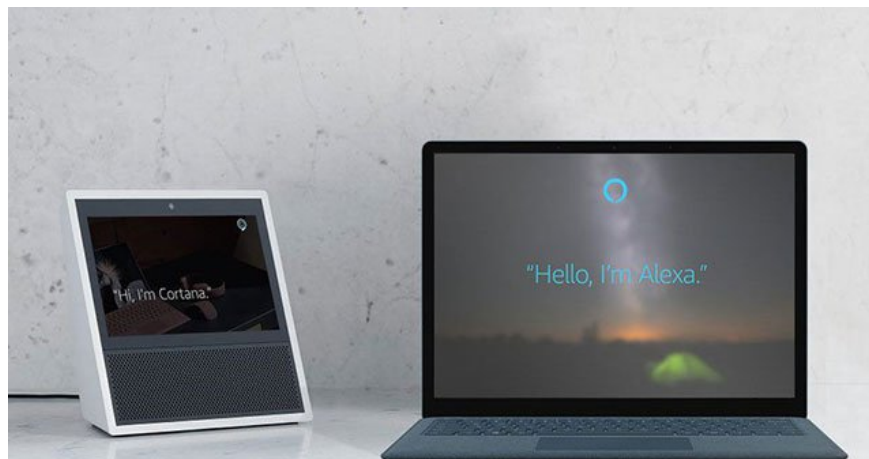

The two tech giants Microsoft and Amazon have decided to allow their two virtual assistants to communicate with each other and this will be a good start to a good relationship.

The two tech giants Microsoft and Amazon have decided to allow their two virtual assistants to communicate with each other and this will be a good start to a good relationship.

In an unexpected move on Wednesday, the two companies made a joint statement saying that now you can order these two virtual assistants like 'Alexa, open Cortana' or 'Cortana, Please open Alexa'.

'Ensuring Cortana serves customers everywhere and on every device is our key priority,' said Satya Nadella, CEO of Microsoft in a joint statement, appearing on both the Amazon and Microsoft websites. 'Bringing Cortana's knowledge, integrating Office 265, Alexa reminders is a big step towards achieving that goal'.

The attitude of postponement in a tense battle between virtual assistants, to gain dominance for smart home devices can lead to many inventions of smart home devices. And now when two assistants can communicate with each other, this means a lot. But how big it depends depends on how big tech guys let Alexa and Cortana work together.

Two virtual assistants Alexa and Cortana can now communicate with each other

'The world is large and very multifaceted. More and more artificial intelligence organizations have different data sets and specialized skills,' said Jeff Bezos, Amazon's CEO.

The big question now is how Apple (Siri author) and Google (Google Home) will react? Do they join? Are they even invited? Or did they reject the invitation to join? Anyway, combining Alexa and Cortana, the combination that two virtual assistants create will not only benefit users but also make the competition more intense with Apple and Google.

'Together, their power will complement each other and give customers a better user experience,' Bezos said, 'great when Echo users can access Cortana easily'.

You finished reading the article "Alexa and Cortana can now talk to each other, leaving Apple's Siri and Google Home" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.