

Android phone settings 'read' the name of the caller

In the following article, we will present some basic operations for your Android phone to display and 'read' the caller's name ...

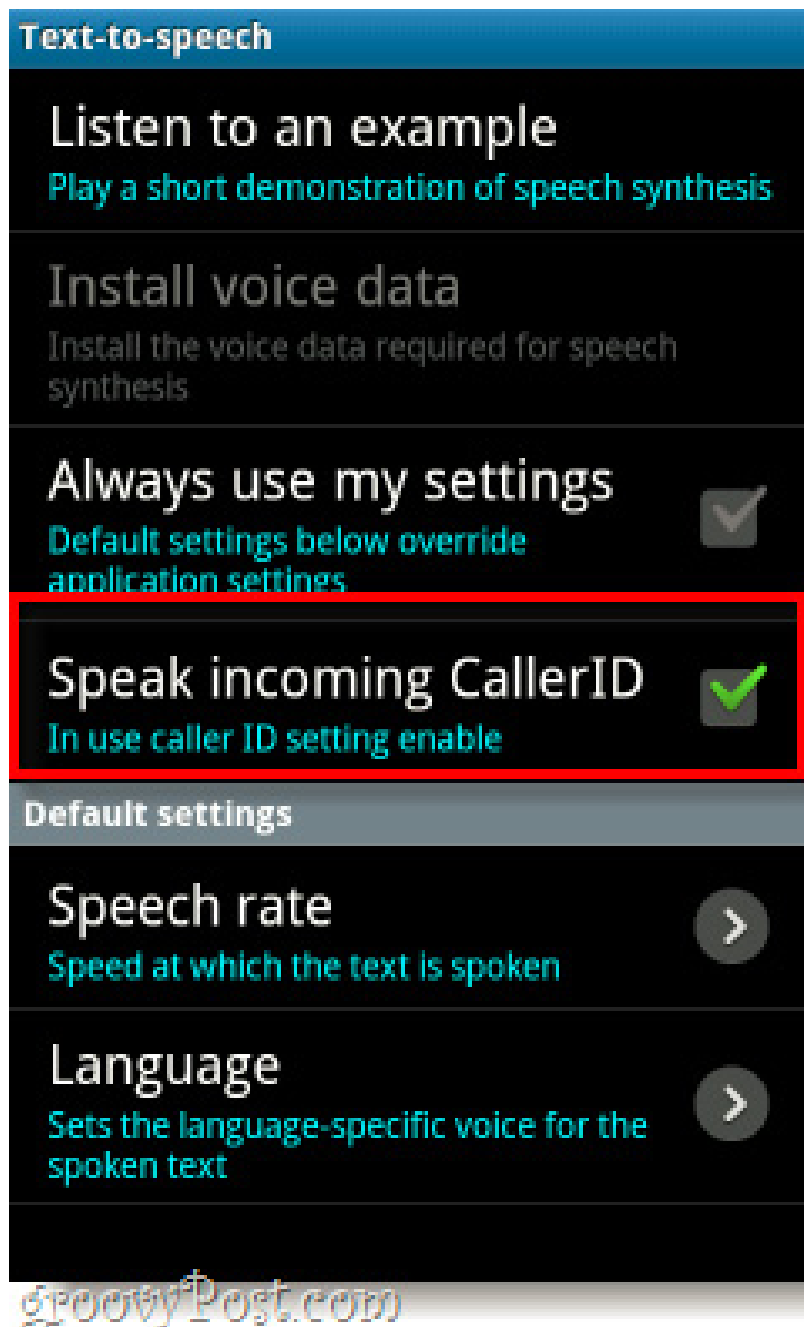

TipsMake.com - In the article below, we will present some basic operations for your Android phone to display and "read" the name of the caller. First, open the Settings section:

Here, we choose to continue Text-to-speech:

And check the box in Speak to CallerID:

Very simple and easy. After we install and activate the Text to speech mode on the phone, every time someone calls your number, the system will automatically 'read' their name or number, this feature will be really useful. Useful when you are not comfortable looking at the screen before deciding whether to respond or not.

You finished reading the article "Android phone settings 'read' the name of the caller" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.