

Apple is confident the 'See' series played by 'Aquaman' Jason Momoa will be as appealing as the Game of Thrones

This series will be shown on Apple TV + streaming service.

Ahead of next month's launch, Apple is starting to aggressively promote its new streaming service. Their most recent move is to acclaim the "See" series to the sky. This is an upcoming series on Apple TV +, starring Jason Momoa, "Aquaman" star, about a gloomy future where people no longer see the light.

In an interview with Emmy magazine, Apple Vice Presidents Jamie Erlicht and Zack van Amburg talked about "See" as follows: "Is it as epic as Game of Thrones? We answered the question." Asking that before was entirely possible! "

Is it because Apple has placed high expectations on "See" when comparing it to one of the most popular TV series in modern history? Maybe right, maybe not. But Jason Momoa himself was also very excited earlier, as evidenced by two Instagram posts describing this series as the "best" show he has ever participated in - another way of saying "See" is better than "Game of Thrones". ". We can see this compliment as an outrageous ad that promotes a relatively new streaming service that no one has ever used by Apple - but actually there's an important element involved. "See" makes us not miss it.

That factor is the author and writer of "See", Steven Knight, who is also the author of one of the most interesting TV series available today on every streaming service: Peaky Blinders, a British gangster series currently playing on Netflix. in U.S.A. Needless to say, Steven's hand in creating "See" was enough for him to deserve an eye on.

Reference: BGR

You finished reading the article "Apple is confident the 'See' series played by 'Aquaman' Jason Momoa will be as appealing as the Game of Thrones" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

© 2019 TipsMake.com