

Apple partner lacks employees due to the new MacBook

Informed that while Apple is about to launch a new MacBook notebook, its partners are facing labor shortages, which Apple orders too much.

Informed that while Apple is about to launch a new MacBook notebook, its partners are facing labor shortages, which Apple orders too much.

The number of orders that "Apple" entrusted to partners was so much that some partners had to outsource production to keep up with the production schedule.

Previously, labor shortages became a problem for manufacturing companies in China.

Especially when May and June were the 'quiet' stages of these manufacturing partners, they suddenly received a massive order from Apple, making the shortage of workers more and more should be more serious.

It is expected that the new MacBook and iMac-all-in-One laptops will be released this summer, in which the MacBook is expected to be slimmer and lighter, and both the iMac and MacBook Pro will probably be equipped. High resolution Retina screen.

You finished reading the article "Apple partner lacks employees due to the new MacBook" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
