

Apple sent an invitation to the new product launch event on October 16

Just like some previous leaked information, Apple sent an invitation to the new product launch event on October 16, about a week away.

Just like some previous leaked information, Apple sent an invitation to the new product launch event on October 16, about a week away.

It's been way too long.

Apple iPad Air, iPad mini, new iMac launched simultaneously on October 16?

Accordingly, the new event will be held by Apple in Town Hall, its Cupertino campus on 10 October (local time) on October 16. This is a consecutive event, which took place just weeks after the iPhone 6/6 Plus duo and smartwatch Watch were revealed.

However, the event invitation did not mention the newly launched products. There is only the words " It's been way too long ". Therefore, this event is expected to have many new names released.

According to previous leaks, it is likely that Apple will launch a series of new devices including the new iPad Air and iPad mini generation, iMac with Retina display as well as the official version of Mac OS X 10.10 Yosemite platform. , . However, Apple has never confirmed this.

We will fully inform readers when the event takes place officially.

You finished reading the article "Apple sent an invitation to the new product launch event on October 16" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

