

Apple will release new iPad models in early May 2024

According to Bloomberg journalist Mark Gurman, Apple will introduce new iPad Pro and iPad Air models in early May.

Initially, it was expected that Apple would launch new products in March or early April. However, according to Gurman, the completion of software and complex new production technology has caused delays to the plan. the company's original plan.

Specifically, the next generation iPad Pro models are expected to be equipped with OLED screen technology and the new M3 chip. Meanwhile, the iPad Air 2024 line will have a standard size of 10.9 inches and a larger version with a completely new 12.9 inch screen.

It is worth noting that Apple is increasing production of new products at the present time, showing their determination in bringing quality and worth-waiting products to users. It can be predicted that the launch of new iPad models will bring many improvements for better user experiences, especially in working and entertainment on touch screens.

You finished reading the article "Apple will release new iPad models in early May 2024" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.