

Are these images of the MacBook Air Retina 12 '?

iFanr has just posted a number of images that are said to be the new Macbook Air 12, a compact and Retina-powered computer that has been rumored extremely recently.

iFanr has just posted a number of images that are said to be the new Macbook Air 12, a lightweight Retina computer that is rumored to be extremely popular recently.

While the accuracy of these images has not yet been confirmed, it has given us a sense of what Apple's next product will look like, especially when people compare it to some devices. Current as iPad or Macbook.

The source of iFanr said the screen was Retina but did not specify the resolution, but they did not capture the lower part to answer the rumors that the machine would only have very few communication ports. In fact, people can only get the upper part of the machine without the keyboard and the boards below. The apple logo on the front is also not glowing, but it resembles something more iPad-like. In fact, there was a report before that Apple might make a logo on their devices differently, for example, the laser cut it creates 3D blocks and shines on the edges, so we don't know yet. It is not true.

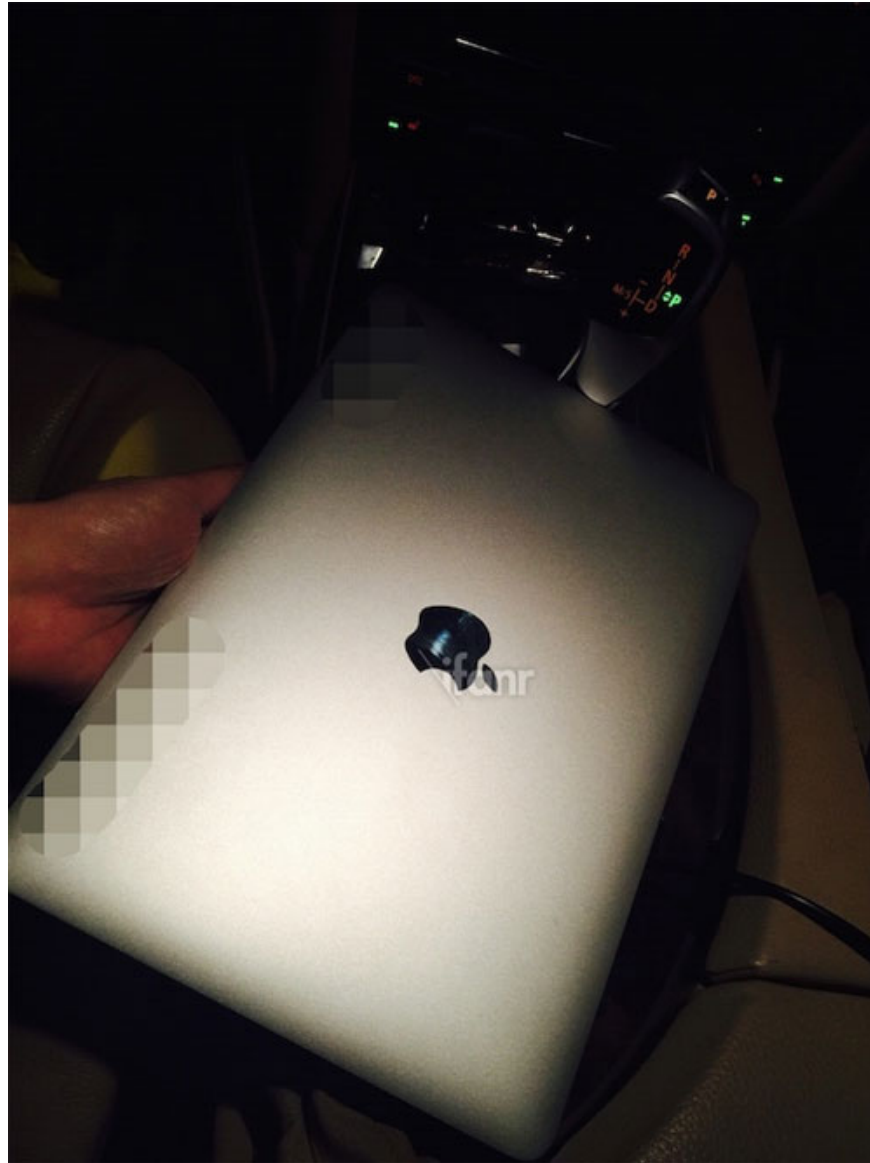

Compared to the Macbook Air 13 ": the most smaller

Compared to iPad Air 2

You finished reading the article "Are these images of the MacBook Air Retina 12 '?" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
