

Arena of Truth will be increasing the number of champions on the stage

Increasing the number of DTCL champions will help gamers increase the diversity of tactics and have more squad arrangements.

During the period of Riot Games' 10-year birthday event, after the Arena of Truth 9.20 is still updated with the Tribe, the new champion will also have other interesting features. And one of the upcoming new features that will be updated in the DTCL is that the number of champions in the DTCL will be increased to 4 compared to the current 3 rows.

This information was revealed on Twitter by Stephen "Mortdog" Mortimer, the development director of the Arena of Truth, accompanied by a specific photo.

"A lot of people have speculated on this, now I will confirm it. The upcoming Season 2 will have a larger battle area, each player will have 4 rows of generals, this will bring" tons ". how to arrange a new squad. "

The expansion of the number of champions in the Arena of Truth will help players be able to create more interesting tactics on the stage.

Mortdog also shared in an interview with Travis Interview that the change in the number of champions on the initial stage will also affect the meta in the near future. At the same time with the participation of the new System - Tribe in DTCL will make the meta game become more volatile and will make players have a more unpredictable gameplay.
