

Asus stopped producing 8.9-inch Eee PC

Asus claims to completely stop producing Eee PC netbooks with 8.9-inch screen sizes this year.

Asus claims to completely stop producing Eee PC netbooks with 8.9-inch screen sizes this year.

This year Asus will stop producing and selling 8.9-inch Eee PC models.

This information is the news site semiconductor Digitimes (Taiwan) quoted from the President of Asia-Pacific region of Asus Benson Lin.

According to Benson Lin, in 2009 Asus will not release Eee PC models with 8.9-inch screens. The reason is that 10-inch screen netbooks have become popular and are mainstream in today's netbook market.

Asus Asia-Pacific president said in 2009, 10-inch screen netbooks will account for about 95% of Asus netbook output, while the remaining 5% will be netbooks. 7-inch model for telecom service providers.

You finished reading the article "Asus stopped producing 8.9-inch Eee PC" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
