

Asus will be Intel's 'big customer'

Asus has chosen the name that can provide their processor the longest way and the name is none other than Intel.

Asus has chosen the name that can provide their processor the longest way and the name is none other than Intel.

According to a report from Digitimes, the source provided by Taiwan component manufacturers and equipment assemblies said that Asus has ordered a lot of processors for most of its products like motherboard, PC, laptop, MTB and smartphone with Intel, thereby officially becoming the "big partner" of this large chip manufacturer.

According to the source, the fact that Asus "found out" Intel is a great opportunity for the VXL maker, as it now competes increasingly with Qualcomm, Nvidia, MediaTek, Allwinner Technology or Fuzhou Rockchip Electronics. . . Meanwhile, Asus is also "expanding" its products in all segments, categories, . so it needs "famous" brands like Intel. Therefore, this cooperation will benefit both parties.

Neither Asus nor Intel have made any comment after this information.

You finished reading the article "Asus will be Intel's 'big customer'" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.