

Avast Software released a virus test for Mac

This antivirus software is completely new software compared to Ondrej Vitek, Avast's existing security software for Mac computers.

Avast Software, a big name in antivirus software, has released a test version of the free antivirus software for Apple Mac users.

This antivirus software is a completely new software compared to Ondrej Vitek, Avast's existing security software for Mac computers.

According to Avast, the final version of this antivirus software will also be completely free. The name as well as the official launch date of this software will also be announced soon by Avast.

Security issues of Mac computer users are of great interest in the past few weeks when a new malicious code called Mac Defender appeared. Soon after, Apple also released an update for its security applications to deal with this malicious code.

Avast Free Antivirus for Mac Beta is compatible with all Mac computers running Mac OS X v10.5 or later. Download here .

You finished reading the article "Avast Software released a virus test for Mac" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

