For anyone looking to improve or completely change their hair color, the hair color palette is definitely a useful tool for determining which color to choose.

There are 4 main hair colors: yellow, brown, red and black. These colors can be slightly changed in tone to create a different look. For example, blonde hair can be combined with colder tones to produce ash or champagne gold.

This combination creates a variety of color options to suit any personal preference.

The hair color palette displays a range of colors from yellow to black, making it easy to find colors in a specific range and visualize what colors will look when dyed on the hair. Most color palettes offer multiple options for each primary color, along with cool, warm and neutral tones.

The following hair color palettes are for a major hair care company that specializes in some of the top home use products. These palettes are a great way to find hair color ideas.

Not all hair colors are listed here, but these palettes are enough to show the variety of products. Many hair colors look the same but have different names on each palette.
