Let's find out about Black Knight: Unidentified flying objects are found in NASA's ' Moon-around ' images in this article!

" An alien satellite, thought to have been orbiting the Earth for about 13,000 years, was captured by NASA's camera when 'spinning around the Moon,'" a UFO fan announced.

UFO Streetcap1 hunter posted a NASA Apollo 16 image in a video on his channel.

NASA images of the Moon, Mars, and other planets, as well as the scene of the International Space Station, have been searched in depth studies of alien life evidence.

The expert said in the video: " I went through a lot of photos tonight and I discovered this on a Moon photo. It is at the edge of the photo, the more I zoom in, the more I see it. It appears on quite a number of photographs, but not all, it is a type of structure and is just turning around the Moon.You can see its structure as it zooms in. To me, it looks like some kind of structure . "

Viewers have suggested that it could be the mysterious Black Knight satellite, also known as " Dark Knight " .

The object called Black Knight has existed around the Earth for a relatively long time and is considered a satellite of alien creatures. Although there are photos of this object, many people are still skeptical about its origin and purpose.

After watching the video, Traci Hill posted a comment on YouTube: " It seems like the Dark Knight . "

Black Knight? A latest video of Streetcap1 shows a 'UFO' on the Moon.

Later, Valle Janes added: " There are many people who say it seems like Black Knight . I agree with that ."

However, there are still less convinced people who give other explanations.

An image with the Coil Smoke user name said: " It is possible to terrain as high as mountains but still be exposed to sunlight."

Jack Gordon added: " The captured image is more likely to be an alien ship ."

NASA images in 1998 (left) and a Black Knight object were previously accused on the Moon in July 2015.

Black Knight Satellite is the name given to an object shot by NASA astronauts in mission missions in 1998.

There are alien conspiracy theorists claiming satellites of extraterrestrial origin, possibly up to 13,000 years old, orbiting the Earth in orbit.

The myth was developed in 1963, when NASA astronaut Gordon Cooper reported that he had seen the Black Knight Satellite while still in space, but there was a disruption of the media when he returned and the US space agency thought it was hallucinating about the universe.

There have been reports that a decade later in 1973, a Scottish researcher, Duncan Lunan, looked back at data from Norwegian scientists since 1928, before announcing " the message " of Black Knight. sent from Epsilon Boötis by aliens, as a welcome message to Earth from 12,600 years ago.

In 1998, the first satellite images appeared and were taken by space shuttle astronauts Endeavor - the first flight to the ISS International Space Station.

However, many people are skeptical of claiming the legend was created after the 1998 image launched, with the previously bizarre events woven into the story making it more convincing.

Skeptics also said that the Black Knight satellite's existence had been extinguished many times, and NASA images showed that, as the space agency said at the time, a heat shield was absent. Love falls off the shuttle.

In a video called " Black Knight Satellite UFO Documentary - Truth Exposed 2015 - (Debunked) '(translated: Black Knight UFO Satellite Document - The Truth Exposed in 2015) - he stated the assertion definitively. that " Black Knight ", as shown in 1998 by NASA, is nothing more than a crashed heat shield.

The shuttle crew Endeavor dropped the heat shield as they worked on the ISS International Space Station.

In her video, NUA compared with NASA's video about the mission Endeavor showing an image of a heat shield on the ISS International Space Station.

The same heat shield is then seen when the crew falls into space.

He accentuated the heat shield that resembled the "Black Knight" shape in the 1998 images captured by conspiracy theorists and explained that objects only appeared to be changed because it disappeared when fall.
