

Brush Unico mouthpiece is claimed to brush teeth clean in just 3 seconds

Back in July, we learned about the Amabrush, a tool that cleans all teeth in just 10 seconds. For many people, they feel the tool works for a long time, so recently, Unico, a smart smart tube that is supposed to be brushed in just three seconds is about to be released.

Back in July, we learned about the Amabrush, a tool that cleans all teeth in just 10 seconds. For many people, they feel the tool works for a long time, so recently, Unico, a smart toothbrush is said to be brushing in just three seconds to be released.

Unico is essentially a tube that contains a few small brushes, with a small pump system that brings toothpaste to individual brushes. These brushes are provided by a separate electrical component containing an engine and slot on the stethoscope.

According to Kickstarter site, this device can clean your teeth in just 1.87 seconds, but the full time has been raised up to three seconds.

The device has four separate mouth sizes and each mouth placed in an ultraviolet rack for sterilization after use. Everything is contained in the dock to load the motor unit between uses and the attached device, with an accompanying application that allows you to adjust the setting of the tube washing time and adjust the rated speed of the hose. .

This product will be mass-produced and is expected to begin in December 2017 and the first products will be available from February 2018.
