

Can Laptops and Laptop Chargers be checked in? Regulations on electronic devices

Airlines have different regulations on electronic luggage that customers can bring. Let's find out if laptop chargers can be checked in and brought on the plane.

Laptops and laptop chargers are classified as electronic devices and are carried around quite a lot due to work requirements. Airlines have different regulations on electronic luggage that customers can bring. Let's find out whether laptop chargers can be checked in or brought on the plane through the following article.

Can laptops and laptop chargers be brought on planes?

According to regulations, laptops and laptop chargers are allowed on planes.

During takeoff and landing, passengers will not be allowed to use laptops. The time of use must comply with regulations and be permitted by the airline's pilots.

Laptop chargers are laptop accessories and are allowed on the plane. In addition, some electronic devices are allowed on the plane such as: cameras, power banks, etc.

Should I put my laptop in carry-on or checked baggage?

Above is the most basic information about general regulations of airlines on electronic devices: laptops, laptop chargers can be checked in, can laptop chargers be brought on the plane . Hopefully, the article has provided readers with the most basic information so that readers can prepare for their trip in the best way.

TipsMake is one of the leading units specializing in providing genuine electronic equipment products: laptops , PCs, computer components, etc. in the Vietnamese market. Contact TipsMake today to receive the best advice and support on the best products and promotions in 2023.

You finished reading the article "Can Laptops and Laptop Chargers be checked in? Regulations on electronic devices" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.