But thanks to the GoPro camera, enthusiasts of the fighter types have the opportunity to stand alongside US Air Force pilots during a F-16 training flight.

Normally, we can only see fighter jets flying in the sky through movies or videos. It is almost unimaginable to experience the feeling of sitting in the cockpit to control fighter jets because not everyone has the opportunity to become a pilot.

But thanks to the GoPro camera, enthusiasts of the fighter types have the opportunity to stand alongside US Air Force pilots during a F-16 training flight. Although it is not directly controlled by the aircraft, the camera's angle will give you an impressive view of the F-16 firing AGM-88 HARM bullets with a 20mm cannon and dropping the GBU-12 with Mk-82 and Mk-84.
