

Comamand block and some codes in Minecraft game

Instructions on how to activate Command Blocks, and how to use the code in the game Minecraft. Summary of some cheat commands in Minecraft game

As you all know, Minecraft is an extremely creative game. The aim of the game is to give players the best experience possible.

Here you can freely create, build all the things you like. Therefore, the game does not limit anything of the player at all, they can create many strange and unique things, . depending on the player's creativity.

But to create those things, you have to use code (because the game doesn't necessarily have everything available). You can use the code from the newsletter, but the commands here are mostly game commands and are quite limited.

So to expand and enhance the commands, the game's developer has come up with a tool called a comman block . Today I will introduce you to a few basic things about the command block and some simple commands that come with it.

1. What is Command block?

Command block is a block used to enter code from simple to complex, to increase the game's appeal. Command block has 3 basic types: Impulse, Chanin, Repeat.

1. Impulse is an orange command block, it is used to use single blocks.
2. Chanin is in the form of command blocks in blue, its function is to program commands.
3. Repeat is purple and is used to enter repeated commands. Depending on the commands, you can choose each type of command blocks.

Important Note: Command blocks can only be installed and set up for use in creative mode. In survival mode, you will not be able to create command blocks and use it.
