

Cookie Run: Kingdom – Tips to overcome the Tower of Sweet Chaos

Tower of Sweet Chaos is unlocked after going 4-12 in Cookie Run: Kingdom adventure mode. This is one of the best sources of Jelly EXP and contains treasure chests that provide many useful rewards

This game mode requires the player to beat all 150 trays (the first 90 are unlocked in the first half of the season and the remaining 60 are unlocked in the second half).

The difficulty level in each tray is also gradually becoming more and more difficult to overcome, and there are restrictions on the cookies that gamers can use. For example, it can prohibit the use of Magic type cookies on a specific tray, or limit you from using up to 4 Epic level cookies, or even disable Treasures.

How to play Tower of Sweet Chaos . game mode

Using Searing Key

The Searing Key is required to unlock the Tower of Sweet Chaos trays. Like Stamina Jelly and Arena Ticket, these keys will refill over time.

It takes one hour to get 1 Searing Key and the maximum number of keys at a time is capped at 72. Players cannot purchase keys with crystals.

Each season of Tower of Chaos will last 2 months, which is enough time to clear the tower and get the best rewards from the treasure chest. The number of Searing Keys required to unlock the trays is as follows:

1. Trays 1-49: about 6 Searing Keys per tray
2. Trays 50-99: about 8 Searing Keys per tray
3. Tray 100-150: about 10 Searing Keys per tray

Not every tray in the tower costs 6-10 Searing Keys to open. Sometimes a tray will have two treasure chest options, and these chests cost more than 10 keys to open.

When starting in the tower everyone is better off looking for the more expensive chests, but as you pass more trays (around the middle of the tower), the expensive chest rewards start to decrease in value, so choose the cheaper option.

Choosing to buy expensive chests at this point would be a waste as everyone needs to save their keys to clear the entire tower.

If you want to get through all 150 trays, you'll need a power level of around 600,000 to beat the 150th Tray. If the current team doesn't reach that number, it's still possible to continue playing the highest tray to the best of your ability. mine, to get more Star Jelly, or unlock the remaining good treasure chests with the Searing Key.

Collect Chaos Cake Piece

When clearing a regular tray for the first time, the game rewards Chaos Cake Pieces, which can be used to purchase and upgrade the Ominous Cake Tower landmark (1200 pieces worth).

Ominous Cake Tower increases the HP of cookies. Leveling it up requires more cake shards and currently maxes out at 50.

Gamers can also purchase decorations with Chaos Cake Piece pieces, but this is not recommended as they provide absolutely no additional effects.

Tips for playing Tower of Sweet Chaos

In Sugar Gnome Lab, there are upgrades where players can get a higher maximum number of Searing Keys and faster reload times.

Please upgrade the reload time of the Searing Key, however the number of items needed to upgrade is optional.

Players can get Searing Keys as rewards from events, enter the latest Cookie Run: Kingdom code, and sometimes game developer Devsisters send them in for free.

The game also has packs in the shop to provide more keys, but this is not necessary to get through the Tower of Sweet Chaos trays.

If the tray prohibits the use of Defensive Cookies, use one of the Damage Cookies instead and vice versa. The same applies to Recovery Cookies and Support Cookies. People can refer to the List of Cookie Characters to understand their capabilities.

The best rare cookies to use when limited to 3 to 4 Epic+ cookies are Cherry Cookie (stun) and Custard Cookie III (HP shield).

You finished reading the article "Cookie Run: Kingdom – Tips to overcome the Tower of Sweet Chaos" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.