Yesterday, retailer Best Buy announced a series of price reductions for Macbook Pro products. In it, the lowest is 100 USD for the cheapest version and reduce to nearly 200 USD for the highest priced version. For example, the MacBook 15.4-inch model with a storage capacity of 750 USD will only cost from 2,019 USD compared to the original price of 2,199 USD, which is lower than 181 USD compared to the recommended price from the manufacturer export.

Digital Trends said that Best Buy's move is supposed to "dispose " of all of Apple's remaining products in stock, ahead of the shipment for the next-generation MacBook model. According to analysts, it is likely that Apple will launch a new product model at the Worldwide Developers Conference (WWDC) 2012 which will take place on 11/6.

The last time Best Buy discounted for Apple products was in February, a $ 50 discount for iPad 2 tablets. Only a week later, the 3rd generation iPad officially appeared.

Rumors of a new generation of MacBook Pro have emerged in recent months. The next version of this notebook is said to be thinner, higher performance and more likely to be equipped with Retina display with a resolution of 2048 × 1536 pixels. According to 9to5Mac, the new MacBook may use Intel's Ivy Bridge processor and be equipped with additional USB 3.0 ports.
