What is Titan?

First of all, we need to understand the concept of Titan. These are villains that are quite similar in appearance to humans. They specialize in attacking and eating humans as well as putting humanity in danger of extinction.

According to the movie's content, Titan is of human origin and turned into by humans injected with Titan serum. Attack on Titan has three main groups of Titans: Normal Titan, Anomalous Titan, and Transformation Titan. Among them, the transforming Titans are the strongest and most special group when they possess special abilities.

Normal Titan

This is the type of Titan that makes up the largest number of the Attack on Titan anime series. They have an average height of 2 to 15m and are quite similar in appearance to humans. The normal Titan can move on two legs like a human or use both legs and arms to move like an animal. Usually they will head towards the humans closest to them and eat them.

Normal Titans can be hurt, injured and easily tricked into traps because they have no brains. That is why they are the most easily defeated Titans. The only weak point to be able to defeat the Titans is the nape of the neck.
