

Discover the most memorable special edition Casio watches

The Casio watch brand has long been synonymous with durability, innovation and timeless design.

In addition to quality watches, Casio also stands out with its limited edition models, providing users with not only timekeeping functionality but also bold style. These exclusive models not only represent Casio's heritage but also possess unique designs and features that make them stand out from the crowd.

Let's take a look at some of the notable limited edition watches in Casio's history as listed below.

Casio GMW-B5000SS-2 (50th Anniversary Edition)

To mark its 50th anniversary, Casio has introduced a new design for the GMW-B5000. This is the first G-Shock to be redesigned with a full metal body and blue and gold accents, paying homage to the original Casio model. These colors of the watch not only represent the depth of Casio's history but also bring elegance to the product.

Casio G-Shock x Charles Darwin Foundation GA-B2100CD-1A4

This special edition is similar to the regular GA-B2100CD-1A4, but it is designed with a new color scheme and logo based on the world's only diving iguana. The watch is red and black, inspired by the Galapagos marine iguana. In addition, the GA-B2100CD-1A7, with its black and white motif, is also designed based on the image of the Galapagos penguin.

Casio G-Shock Barbie Edition

One particularly notable collaboration between Casio and Mattel's Barbie brand is the GMA-S110BE, GMA-S110BE-4A, and GMA-S110BE-4AJR, which feature different shades of pink for the dial, case, and band. Not only do these watches feature Barbie branding, they also feature heart-shaped details on the dial, reflecting the brand's playful style. Notably, Casio used natural dyes from food waste to create the eco-friendly colors.
