

Discover the process of manufacturing terracotta army nearly 8,000 mysterious soldiers of Qin Shihuang

After years of research, archaeologists have finally figured out how ancient Chinese craftsmen created this special army.

Qin Shihuang's terracotta army was a terracotta-shaped population of people and horses dating to more than 2,000 years buried under the first emperor of China during 210-209 BC. Terracotta statues are sculpted in detail from fingernails to real-life hairstyles, especially with no female faces.

1. Why was the tomb of Qin Shihuang discovered but still a mystery?
2. 3 mysteries about the life of Qin Shihuang still have no solution

After years of research, archaeologists have finally figured out how ancient Chinese craftsmen created this special army.

The video below will help us to solve the mystery of Qin Shihuang's process of creating terracotta army.

You finished reading the article "Discover the process of manufacturing terracotta army nearly 8,000 mysterious soldiers of Qin Shihuang" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.